Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

WHAT IT IS.

It is a superior brand of pure whiskey, its chief merit being that it is distilled by a secret process discovered by us in 1860, whereby every trace of fusel oil and other injurious substances are eliminated. It is the only whiskey of the kind manufactured in the world, and it is the only absolutely pure whiskey on the market. While as a whiskey and for every purpose to which a whiskey is put, either as a medicine or drink, it is unequaled by any other whiskey, it is, owing to its absolute purity, especially fitted for medicinal purposes. Another peculiar feature of it is that it is the only whiskey that will stay on the stomach of invalids and debilitated persons, and, combining as it does a food quality with that of a stimulant, it is the only whiskey that ought to be used in the treatment of the sick; and a still further feature, that in whatever quantity it is consumed, there are no after effects from it, such as are experienced from the use of other whiskeys containing fusel oil and other poisons. It is consequently a medicine of established standard, and in order to protect the public and to guarantee its purity and standard quality, and to prevent its adulteration or deterioration in any manner, it is put up and sold only in sealed bottles. Being a superior brand of pure whiskey, distilled from the very best materials, it is of necessity an expensive one, and by the demand created for it as such among consumers, dealers are virtually compelled to handle it, although at a profit to them of about one-fourth of what is usually made on other whiskies, such as many of them have the reputation of keeping. For this reason we would impress upon our friends the importance of demanding ours as the only pure whisky, and we warn them, in view of the hundreds of analyses this whiskey has received at the hands of the most eminent chemists of this country, and to which we openly submit it at all times, that where any attempt is made by unscrupulous druggists to palm off an inferior and adulterated whiskey as being as good or pure as ours, they are actuated solely by mercenary motives; and the druggist or dealer who for paltry gain is guilty of such an act, is as culpable as a man who would sell virulent poison, regardless of consequences. We repeat that this is the only whiskey of the kind in the world. We are its discoverers and sole manufacturers, and we challenge any one to produce a whiskey like it, either in purity or excellence. Another thing we would impress upon our friends is, not to be deceived by other malt whiskies, as there are just as many grades of bad malt whiskies equally as poisonous as other whiskies, and none of them are pure. It is under this guise that several unscrupulous manufacturers are trying to reap benefits from our name and prestige.

A COLD-BLOODED DEED.

COL. STRONG OF THE ST. JOE HERALD MURDERED BY DR. RICHMOND.

A Tragic Occurrence in the Counting-Room of the Daily Herald at St. Joseph, Mo.—Dr. S. A. Richmond Coolly Enters the Office and Shoots Three Times at Col. Strong—The Murderer Shoots Himself.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 18.—At 11 o'clock this morning as Col. J. W. Strong, manager of the Herald, was sitting in the counting-room, his back to the door, Dr. S. A. Richmond entered the doorway and drawing a revolver fired one shot, which struck his victim in the left side of the neck. Col. Strong jumped up and staggered toward the back office. Richmond fired two more shots and Strong fell. Richmond then turned outside, and going some twenty feet from the door, placed the revolver to his temple and fired, dropping instantly to the sidewalk. At the time of shooting, Col. Strong was engaged in conversation with some unknown man and was totally unconscious of the approach of an enemy until he was struck by the first bullet. Richmond drove up to the front of the office in his carriage, sitting on the back seat, his driver in front. He is said to have alighted cooly, and walked to the Herald office door without any traces of excitement. When he commenced to shoot his driver drove away and left him, and it was after turning to look for his carriage and finding it gone that

HE SHOT HIMSELF.

Col. Strong fell, struck by two bullets, one of which, as stated, struck in the neck, ranging upward into the brain. The other struck in his back and is believed to have penetrated his heart. He said: "I am dying," and passed away in five minutes after the first shot was fired. Richmond's bullet took effect in the left temple, and as yet it is impossible to tell whether it will prove fatal or not. It is believed, however, that he will not recover, as he is a raving maniac at present. The trouble is solely of Richmond's own making. He has long been known to the newspaper fraternity as the discoverer and manufacturer of Samaritan Nervine, and has been an extensive advertiser and has had an enormous business in his nostrum. Some year and a half ago Col. Strong was one of the principal attorneys for him in his suit with Harlan P. Hubbard, the advertising agent of New Haven, Conn. It is believed that his business affairs were too weighty for his brain, and that he became crazy. Some five months ago he disappeared from this community and left a lot of papers, evidently the work of either

A KNAVE OR HOPELESS LUNATIC.

He charged Col. Strong and other prominent attorneys of this city with having ruined him in these papers, and indicated that he had ended his career in the river. At that time opinions differed as to his condition, some holding him crazy and others believing him simply working a sly ruse to obtain $85,000 insurance on his life. Two months ago he turned up in Chicago, crazy, and was brought home. Since that time he has not been seen about town but once or twice, until the tragic event of to-day. All people acquainted with the circumstances know that Col. Strong was entirely innocent, as were the other parties, of the charges made against them in Richmond's manifesto, in which he claimed that he had only been restrained from killing Strong and others by the greatest moral efforts. The deed of to-day proves Richmond's lunacy beyond doubt, or at least such is

THE POPULAR VERDICT.

Col. Strong leaves a large family, six persons, consisting of a wife and three sons, the eldest of whom is John P. Strong, editor-in chief of the Herald. The other sons are aged respectively 15 and 12. The eldest daughter is Mrs. W. B. Summey of Washington, who was married about a month ago and the other a little girl of 10 years. He was 61 years old, a lawyer by profession, and a man who has been very prominent in the Republican party of Northwest Missouri for nearly thirty years. His home was originally Jacksonville, Ill., where he has a large number of friends and relatives. He was a man of violent prejudices, but was well liked and highly esteemed by those who knew him best, and especially was he liked by the men in his office. He was a forcible writer and a man of great mental force.

NO RESTRICTION OF RIGHTS.

Louisiana Legislators Petition the Governor Not to Sign the Sunday Law.

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—Twenty members of the Legislature join in a protest to the Governor against his signing the bill known as the Sunday law, giving as reasons that it is a violation of the fundamental principles underlying the Constitution, which guarantees to the individual citizen the fullest measure of personal freedom and an absolute separation of church and State; that the arguments that its provisions are in favor of the toiling masses are sophistical, idle and illusory; that its effect will be to deprive them of recreation and rational enjoyment on Sunday, and that the proposed law on the whole is obnoxious to public policy and violative of the Constitution.

OVERESTIMATED CROPS.

Late Reports Not so Encouraging—Export Prices—Exchange Gossip.

President Seth W. Cobb of the Merchants' Exchange returned to-day from a trip to Wichita, Kan., which has kept him absent for nearly a week past. On his trip he took occasion to find out as much about the crops as possible and his reports are not glowing. Immediately around Wichita, in Sedwick County, the wheat crop is very poor and the oat crop is nearly a failure, but outside of this section the wheat is fair and oats are poor. The corn crop is looking in splendid condition. The farmers are discouraged over the outlook on account of the low prices, combined with a short crop. The Missouri crops appeared to be in excellent condition. From other parts of Kansas the reports are very discouraging. Redmond Cleary says he has received a number of letters from Northern and Middle Kansas stating that the wheat crop was light and the oat crop very poor, but the corn crop promised finely. Mr. Cleary's reports from Illinois and Missouri are good.

Ike Motter, who has just returned from Southern Illinois, says that he found a big difference between the expectations here and the estimates there on the wheat crop. It has been placed at as high as 90 per cent, but he says that the men he met, and most of them are intelligent observers and judges, place the yield at 55 per cent. The chinch bugs have greatly damaged the wheat in that section.

Ex-Gov. E. O. Stanard was on the floor to-day, having returned from his flying visit East. He was in New York, Philadelphia and other cities. Business, he says, is as dull in the East as here, but the feeling is a little more hopeful over the prospect, and they look for better times when the new crop comes in. This bullish feeling is not decided but is noticeable.

The butter men are working hard to get the oleomargarine bill through Congress without much hope of succeeding with the entire bill. W. S. Trusdell is in Washington at work, and favorable reports are received from him and the Missouri Congressmen on the subject. The taxation part of the bill operates most strongly against it, and it is probable that this part of it will be given up, as the butter men only ask for the identification of the product to kill it.

Charles Johnson appeared on the floor this morning in a stove-polish summer coat so slick that a fly would slip on it and break his neck, and with a linen hat. T. W. Carter swapped coats with him and the fun commenced, Carter's dodging skill just saving the coat from total wreck as Floor Manager Smythe came to the rescue. The coat and hat have been ordered in.

Jake Ewald has secured passage to Europe, and will leave for a summer jaunt through the Old World in two weeks.

W. S. Bartley received several cables from Antwerp making bids of 69c for August wheat, which is the best bid that has been received here, and is still five cents or so below this market. Antwerp is said to be buying freely in New York, which is only another indication that the market is high as compared with the East, and is several notches above an export basis as yet.

The competition to furnish 1,500 barrels of flour for the city institutions called out four bids. Two of them were at $4.24 per barrel, one at $4.34, and Fusz & Backer took the contract at $4.04 on an extra fine grade of flour.

The linseed oil market is reported by the trade as in a most depressed condition. There is now said to be west of Pittsburg three and a half million gallons more in sight than at this time last year. By the barrel linseed oil is freely offered at the rate of 55½c a gallon, and buying offers are asked for at 53½c. A party in the trade says it is really not worth 53c. This is about as low as it has ever been.

LABOR LORE.

Signing of the New Scale by the Iron Manufacturers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 18.—The signing of the scale by the iron manufacturers has produced a feeling of security in all branchas of business. It is the first time in the history of the association that the scale has been signed so early in the summer, and its effect can scarcely be estimated now. It is also the first time since 1881 that it has been signed without a fight. The coke men see in this early settlement of the difficulty a summer run which they scarcely anticipated. There seems to be but little doubt that a large percentage of the ovens will continue "fired up" right along. The closing down of the mills for a short time for repairs will have but small effect on the output. The pig iron men also look for a fair trade all summer. They do not expect high prices, but fair ones. The nailers are satisfied with the outlook. They say the outcome of the conference will be either the adoption of the Mingo scale or the signing by the Pittsburg manufacturers. In the latter event they claim it will be a fight of skilled against unskilled workmen, and they will soon run out of the feeder nails at Wheeling. The manufactures of the Mahoning Valley have asked for a separate conference for that valley. It has not been decided whether the request will be granted. They have withdrawn from the Western Iron Association, because they have never received any recognition on the conference committee.

JUDGE CADY fined Mrs. Mary Collins and Mrs. Eliza Reardon of 1906 Poplar, $5 each today for fighting.

MONOPOLY FRANCHISE.

THE IRON MOUNTAIN'S BILL BEFORE THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES COMMITTEE.

Chas. E. Pearce and Judge Fisse Represent the Citizens—The Railroad Lobby—Magnetic Ed Butler on the Scene—Hearing Adjourned to Monday Afternoon.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock the Committee on Railroads of the House of Delegates met to consider the Iron Mountain monopoly franchise bill. There were present Chas. E. Pearce and Judge Fisse of the Citizens' Committee, Geo. D. Capen, George Minch, ex-Judge Laughlin, Ed. Butler, and D. P. Slattery of the railroad lobby. All the members of the committee were present, Mr. Waters presiding. Maj. Pearce presented the objections of the Citizens' Committee to the bill. He said:

"It is conceded that the connection between the river and the Union Depot should be made by means of an elevated way. The Citizens' Committee and merchants, generally, are agreed on that view. It is, however, apparent that the Municipal Assembly has the duty in its hands of protecting the public as well as granting to railroads all privileges possible. Courts are filled with litigation growing out of loose and undigested legislation. Corporations never take less than they are given. They are disposed to take everything that the most liberal construction of the letter of the law will give them. As an instance of he mentioned the Poplar street track. The Supreme Court had fastened that incubus on the city. But courts do not make laws; they construe laws after they are made. While the Assembly might grant the franchise it was bound to see that the rights of the public were properly protected. It is an admitted fact on the part of the Iron Mountain Railroad that as soon as the elevated way goes into operation, the Poplar street track will be of no use to it. If that is true, if the Poplar street track becomes a valueless thing, why not take it up? It is said that this track is covered by bonds and cannot be removed. It is, however, possible for the municipal Legislature to compel the relinquishment of one franchise for a greater benefit."

Mr. Pearce then took up the point of the elevations of the proposed tracks as provided for in the bill. He asked that the elevations be increased one foot. Open bridges were also condemned. The question of monopoly franchise is, he said, the main question in this bill. St. Louis is practically in its infancy. A new bridge is to be built. New roads are seeking entrance into the city from the southwest and southeast. These roads wish to come into the Mill Creek valley, that natural conduit to the Union Depot system. Now, in they should not be given in such a way as to block out and interfere with such companies or individuals. It is not enough to say that the Gould people have bought the property over which they propose to build an elevated way and have, by reason of that purchase, the right to cross the streets. The streets belong to the people, and that right should never be infringed upon. A section in the bill apparently removes the monopoly feature, but a careful reading shows that it does not. The amendment is either intended as a deception or as a provision to transfer cars of roads other than the Iron Mountain without discrimination. If the latter is intended, it fails of its intention. No provision is made as to how the cars can be gotten upon the elevated way for transportation, or for delivering them after they have been gotten over. There is nothing to prevent the Iron Mountain Railroad from fixing to a car as soon as it is transported over the elevated way a switching charge that will make the section of the bill a dead letter. If you want to correct this error provide in the bill for the making of switch connections to the elevated way at both ends, so that when cars are transported they can be taken in charge by the other companies.

He attacked at some length the proposition to make the switching charge $1, and also the provision limiting the charge to earnings that would aggregate 7 per cent net on the investment.

It had been said that the Mill Creek valley was crowded. In 1885, 160,000 cars were taken over a SINGLE TRACK ON POPLAR STREET.

On an elevated way with two tracks, allowing twenty cars to a train and twenty minutes between trains, 1,200,000 cars can be transported in a year. Nearly one-half of the entire business of New York goes into the city over two tracks. He quoted the instance of the shutting out of New York the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad by the construction in the courts of franchises granted the Pennsylvania. The same object was sought in this bill. The Iron Mountain wanted to shut out all future roads.

The Citizens' Committee did not ask any amendments to the bill that would shut out any road, the Gould roads or any others; or in any manner impede the commerce of St. Louis. An amendment to this bill that would provide for switch connections to be made by other roads, and the transportation of cars at reasonable rates, would effectually cut out the monopoly feature and win the committee's support.

Maj. Pearce asked that the Railroad Committee give him further time at another sitting to elaborate the arguments presented.

Judge Fisse said he was not prepared to speak as he had not examined the amended bill and asked that he be given an opportunity at another time.

Mr. Geo. Minch was called on to present the views of the supporters of the bill. Although he had been industriously taking notes during Maj. Pearce's speech he said he had heard no objections to the bill and would like to hear some if there was any opposition to it. If there were no objections he did not care to talk; the bill commended itself.

Mr. Vogel of the House, who was present, excitedly asked to be heard, and said the claim of Mr. Minch that he heard no objections to the bill was absurd. He had noted four principal and vital objections.

Mr. Minch did not reply.

JUDGE FISSE SAID

that while he did not wish to speak in detail at that time on the bill, he would call the committee's attention to the fact that the city or county had never had any dealings with the Iron Mountain or the Missouri Pacific Railroads in which the former had not been cheated. He referred to the Poplar street track which was laid on representations that the railroad only wanted to maintain it for twelve months, and at the end of that time refused to remove it; to the loan of $700,000 by the county to the Missouri Pacific which the railroad company refused to pay until all opportunity for successful litigation had been exhausted. The two companies had received $3,000,000 from the city and county without the return of a single benefit. Under such circumstances, in view of such history, he did not think the city was in any way obligated to give the Iron Mountain or the Missouri Pacific a single benefit that was not limited in such a manner as would be beneficial to the city's interest. No monopoly or exclusive franchises should be given these roads or any other corporations, and such provisions ought to be inserted in the bill as would eliminate the monopoly feature.

It was decided that the committee would hear further argument for and against on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on which understanding it adjourned. The bill as amended is to be printed.

THE RAILROADS.

Wabash Purchase Money—No Changes in the Operating Department.

No changes in the Wabash will be made until along about the middle of September, by which time the purchasing committee will be compelled to pay into court the purchase money. Arrangements are, however, in progress, quietly fixing up a board and new lot of executive officers. It is emphatically stated that Col. Talmage, general manager, and his excellent operating staff will remain undisturbed.

H. D. Mack of Rock Island and W. J. Davenport of Burlington, Division Freight and Passenger Agents of the Q., are in the city in consultation with J. M. Bechtel, the Q representative at this point.

J. H. Best, General Passenger Agent of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern, came down from the North yesterday morning. He says the summer resorts of the North will be well patronized this season, judging from the amount of travel up that way. He says the increase will be fully 30 per cent over last season.

It has become a custom among the railroads on the East side to make a handsome donation to the Firemen's Pension Fund whenever the department goes over there to put out a fire. The railroads are generally very liberal in such matters.

The St. Louis Association of General Passenger Agents will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at the Vandalia office. At the present meeting the members are very reticent over something, and it is probable somebody will be hauled over the coals for cutting watering place rates.

Judge C. L. Seeley, a director of the St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas, accompanied by his wife, arrived in the city this morning on his way West.

Col. S. W. Fordyce, President of the St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas, with Directors Lieb and Stacey of New York, arrived from a trip over the road this morning. Col. Fordyce says the work of widening embankments and reducing grades is progressing nicely. Standard gauge rails are being laid along the line and rolling stock and engines are being made ready for the widening, which will take place in September. Col. Fordyce is much fatigued from his trip, but is enthusiastic over the future prospect of his road.

SHEEPSKINS.

The High School Graduates Receive Their Diplomas To-Day.

The small hall of the Exposition Building was crowded to the doors by a fashionable audience who had come to see the commencement exercises of the St. Louis High School. The graduates presented a very pretty sight ranged along the stage all dressed in regulation white and the young men in black. Across the back of the stage was the motto in flowers, "Gradatim."

The opening piece was a chorus entitled "Praise," rendered by the entire class. "Self-Confidence" was the title of an essay read in a very pleasing manner by Miss Charlotte M. Rumbold. Richard McCulloch followed Miss Rumbold with a finished and elegant oration on "Genius and Industry," at the conclusion of which Verdi's "Fair Shines the Moonlight" was sung by the class.

A scene in German from Grillparzer's "Medea" was brilliantly rendered by Misses Minna G. Brown as Medea, Emily Kooj as Jason, Sophie M. Koch as the King, and Minna C. Sessinghaus as Herold. The Linden Tree chorus from Schubert, was the next exercise on the programme and was sung in an interesting manner.

Miss Harriet McClure Post read in an easy, self-possessed manner, an essay entitled "Strangers Yet."

The oration of Gustave Stern on "The Constitution and Institutions of the United States" was clear and to the point, and was loudly applauded by the audience.

Miss May Patterson's essay, "Self-Examination," showed considerable talent and a decided command of the English language. She ended by saying that according to her estimate of herself in her essay she could safely promise something unique in her case in the future. The whole essay was delicately humorous all the way through and was a credit to the author and the school.

Miss Julia Settemaier gave Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso" on the piano in a very artistic and skillful manner.

The reading of the court scene from Shakspeare's "Merchant of Venice" by Misses Anna C. Whaley as the Duke, Margaret T. Jennings as Antonio, Blanche Wilkerson as Bassanio, Ottillia Bergesch as Gratiano, Mary A. Israel as Salarino, Georgina Raby as Shylock, Frances P. Van Norstrand as Portia, Jessie I. Jones as the Clerk, and Minnie C. Steiner as Nerissa, was done very nicely and the young ladies acquitted themselves most nobly. Miss Raby's Shylock was especially strong. All showed a familiarity with rhetoric and Shakspeare.

The class then sang in chorus Curshman's "Protect Us Through the Coming Night."

Miss Carrie Obermeyer read an essay on "Loves of the Poets," setting forth in clear, elegant terms the lives and histories of some of the famous wives and sweethearts of poets.

Bainbridge Colby's oration, "National Tendencies," was a most decided literary success, and was delivered in a clear, melodious voice, which, while not loud, could be heard in the furthermost corners of the hall. Mr. Colby deserves a great deal of credit as, though one of the best in his class, he is the youngest.

The last exercise previous to the awarding of diplomas was the singing of the "Gloria in Excelsis."

Mr. Dixon, principal of the High School, made a short address to the audience, showing that the class average this year was very high and that the attendance at the High School was rapidly growing each year, the increase in the last ten years being a larger per cent at the High than at any other school. To the graduates he said that he, in the name of all the teachers in the school, wished them welfare and success and that the training received would be put to the proper use.

After Mr. Dixon had finished his address, Dr. Hickman presented, with an appropriate speech, the diplomas. At the conclusion of the distribution of the diplomas the services of some twenty of the extremely young ushers were required to present their graduating school-mates with the flowers sent by friends and parents, each young man taking as many as he could carry and placing them on the front of the stage. In a few moments the entire front of the stage was one mass of flowers.

The scholars who graduate this year are: Charlotte Bender, Otillia Bergesch, Minna G. Braun, Lizzie C. Buckley, Bainbridge Colby, Minnie J. Cooper, Catharine J. Cornelius, Katie A. Degnan, Julia Aleathea DeMain, Bessie M. Ferguson, Thomas E. Flaherty, Alexander D. Grant, Julia F. Hart, Lulu Z. Hays, Josephine Heinzman, Henrietta Henderson, May Hoffman, Mary A. Israel, Margaret T. Jennings, Jessie I. Jones, Sophie M. Koch, Emily Koop, R. McCulloch, Belle Wilcox, Annie M. Meehan, Alice G. Murphy, Bessie O. Nau, Carrie Obermeyer, Katie A. O'Hallaron, Mary Estella Owen, Jessie T. Patterson, May Patterson, Lina M. Placke, Harriet McClure Post, Georgina Raby, Lotta M. Rickert, William L. Ricker, Charlotte M. Rumbold, Bertha E. Schaper, Minna C. Sessinghaus, Julia Settemaier, Minnie C. Steiner, Gustave L. Stern, Frances Post Van Norstrand, Anna C. Whaley, Florence E. Whitehead, Blanche Wilkerson.

The Visitation's Graduates.

The graduating exercises at the Visitation Convent were held very quietly to-day, only the scholars, the sisters and the chaplain being present. The sisters presented their presents in the shape of books and pictures to the scholars. The graduates were Agnes O'Brien, Blanche O'Reilly, Nora Morton, Mamie Warren and Mamie Croak.

The exercises were concluded by the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Meeting of the Railroad Commissioners to Consider Reductions of Rates.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 18.—The Railroad Commissioners will meet at 3 o'clock to-day to consider and act upon the suggestions of the delegations from Kansas City and St. Louis, before them yesterday, asking a reduction of through rates now charged by Missouri railways. It is probable that a reduction will be made. The annual report of the Railroad Commissioners will be ready for the printer about the first of next week.

Capt. Joe Brown, ex-Congressman Frost and Insurance Commissioner Alf Carr are in the city.

Bogus Wealth.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 18.—The police this morning arrested W. W. Trainor and T. F. Wyatt, alias Writty, two notorious bunko steerers. About $10,000 in "skin" money was found on their persons. As no case could be made against them they were discharged and ordered to leave the city. Their bogus wealth was confiscated.

A WHITEWASH.

DISTRICT-ATTORNEY BLISS' REPORT IN THE LANCSATER CASE.

The Peculiar Predicament of the Assistant Sub-Treasurer at San Francisco—Discovery of Deficits—The Readjustment of Postmasters' Salaries and Claim Agent Spalding—The Wheeler-Stanton Debate—Congressional Proceedings—Washington News

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—The Treasury Department has received the report of District Attorney Bliss in the Lancaster case. It is a whitewash of Mr. Lancaster and the Treasury Department will not act under it. The case is not dead yet, however.

Spalding's Scheme.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—There was quite a breeze in the Senate this afternoon over the question raised by Mr. Ingalls heretofore as to the re-adjustment of Postmasters' salaries under what is known as the Spalding act. Under this act certain claims against the Government, on behalf of third and fourth class Postmasters, were created. Spalding, who is a claim agent, attempted to obtain a broader interpretation for this act than the Department or the Attorney-General were willing to give it. The matter has been in controversy for many years, and during that time Spalding has been sending circulars to claimants, asking that they put their claims in his hand, and telling them that he can obtain more for them than can any one else. This claim of Spalding's is utterly without foundation. The Department, in delaying action on these claims, however, would seem to indicate collusion with Spalding. Mr. Chase, in the Senate this morning, intimated as much, saying plainly that he made no distinction in this respect between this and past administrations.

The Oberteuffer Decision.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Acting-Secretary Fairchild, in a letter to Representative Breckenridge of Kentucky, in regard to the estimated receipts and expenditures for the next fiscal year, says that the amounts of refunds to be paid under the Oberteuffer decision as to the duty on cartons, etc., is estimated at between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. He says further that the items of $4,000,000 specified in the book of estimates is for the ordinary and usual repayment to importers of excess of deposits upon ascertained duties, or upon duties and other moneys paid under protest; consequently the estimated sum, he says, should be increased to about $8,000,000 or $9,000,000. He explains that the item of $8,600,000 for debentures, etc., cannot be used for the payment of claims under the Oberteuffer decision or otherwise, except as drawbacks on imported material exported in the form of manufactures. The receipts for the next fiscal year, although given as estimated at $315,000,000, will, probably, amount to $333,000,000 according to the ratio of interest during the present fiscal year.

'Frisco Sub-Treasury Shortage.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Some time ago the Treasury Department discovered a deficit of $10,000 in the accounts of the sub-treasurer at San Francisco. An agent was sent out to examine the cause of the deficit. He has returned with the announcement that not only has he been unable to trace the causes of the former shortage, but he has discovered another, aggregating $2,000, which is also unexplainable. This peculiar state of affairs may result in the Assistant Treasurer, S. H. Brooks, losing his position. When Brooks was appointed to his position, last summer, he gave a territory bond to extend to the adjournment of Congress. On his confirmation he should have given a permanent bond. Mr. Brooks was confirmed in the early part of March, but up to date has not filed a permanent bond. The chances are that the discovery of the shortages in his office will act as a bar to his obtaining bondsmen and on this account he will be obliged to give up his office. Ex-Senator Sharon was the principal surety on Mr. Brooks temporary bond; Mr. Sharon is dead and Mr. Brooks has as yet found no one to take his place.

Mr. Wheeler's Reception.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Gen. George Wheeler of Alabama has issued an invitation which promises a repetition of the funny scenes attendant upon his reception a month ago, at the time the hungry Southern brigadiers proceeded to scramble for the food with such avidity that some of the furniture came near being lost in the shuffle. Mr. Wheeler now announces through the press "that ladies and gentlemen from Alabama in Washington are cordially invited to meet each other" at his residence to-morrow evening. No invitations have been issued, and it is probable that the gathering will not be confined to ladies and gentlemen from Alabama.

The Payne Case.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections held another meeting this morning to discuss the charges that Senator Payne's seat was secured by bribery, but did not decide whether or not to undertake an investigation. Congressmen Little and Butterworth were present and addressed the committee in advocacy of an investigation. Senator Evarts, who is reported to be disinclined to an investigation, was not present; being out of town. The further consideration of the subject was postponed until next Thursday, in order to give Maj. Butterworth an opportunity to prepare a written statement.

Morrison's Tariff Bill.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—A friend of Mr. Morrison stated last night that the Illinois statesman is depending on the President for the passage of the tariff bill. Mr. Morrison, he said, had represented to the President two days ago the necessity of at least discussing the tariff question. He had asked the President to intercede with the members of the New York delegation. The President, this gentleman said, had told Mr. Morrison to see whether he could not get the bill up without his assistance. It is hardly probable that the President will interfere, although he can, if he wishes, bring over the necessary nine members.

New Bills in the Senate.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Senator Cockrell introduced this afternoon a bill for the relief of John Finn. Senator Jones of Arkansas introduced a bill to give the Cherokee freedmen their portion of the money granted the Cherokee Nation under the law of 1883.

The Vote on Vance's Bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—In the Senate Mr. Vance's bill to repeal the civil-service law was, on motion of Mr. Hawley, indefinitely postponed—yeas 33, nays 6. The Senators voting in the negative were: Messrs. Berry, Call, Eustis, Harris, Jones of Nevada and Vance.

Milton Turner's Bill.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Senator Ingalls this afternoon entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Cherokee freedmen's bill was passed yesterday. This is the bill for which J. Milton Turner has been working all winter.

The Hot Springs Bill.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—When the Hot Springs bill was reached on the Senate calendar this afternoon, objection was made to its consideration. Senator Berry asked consideration and Senator Logan objected He said he considered the bill involved a confiscation of private property. Senator Berry said any law was better than none, and he urged discussion. The bill went over.

FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—After the morning business in the Senate Mr. Beck desired to call up the Hawley motion to reconsider the vote by which the Senate passed the bill prohibiting members of Congress from accruing fees or employment from railroad companies that have received Government aid.

Mr. Ingalls thought his resolution of yesterday, requesting the President to furnish information as to appointments and removals under the civil-service law, had precedence. The Chair so decided and the resolution was placed before the Senate.

Mr. Vance offered an amendment requesting information as to appointments made within the scope of the civil-service act between January 16, 1883, when the act passed, and July 15, 1883, when it went into effect. The resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. Beck said he had been trying for ten days to get up the Hawley resolution to reconsider the bill already referred to by him. The bill had passed by a vote of 37 to 11. There must be some means of getting up such a motion, otherwise one man could tie up a bill indefinitely.

Mr. Hawley said he was prepared to take it up at any time, and that the propositions for delay had come from Mr. Beck.

Mr. Beck said he had waited to see whether the Committee on Rules would so report as to permit debate as to explanations to motion to reconsider. He was now willing to let the matter go over till next Tuesday in order to hear from the committee.

Mr. Hoar asked unanimous consent that whenever this motion to reconsider should come up it should be debatable.

Mr. Ingalls objected.

Mr. Beck then said he would call it up on Tuesday next.

House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Mr. Belmont of New York, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported back the circular and diplomatic appropriation bill with a recommendation that certain of the Senate amendments thereto be concurred in and others non-concurred in. The report was agreed to. Mr. Belmont also reported the message of the President on the subject of the inauguration of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" in New York harbor, and it was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Anderson of Kansas offered a resolution providing for the final adjournment of Congress at noon on Saturday, July 3. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. O'Neill of Missouri, from the Committee on Labor, reported the bill granting leaves of absence to employes at United States Navy Yards. House calendar. Also a bill to amend the act prohibiting the importation of contract labor. House calendar.

Private business having been dispensed with, the House went into committee of the whole (Mr. Crisp of Georgia in the Chair) on the naval appropriation bill.

The Stanton debate was continued by Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, who severely criticised Mr. Wheeler's speech upon the late Secretary of War, and declared that he could not tamely submit to have the men who were embalmed in the hearts of their countrymen and whose memory was revered derided by such as the gentleman from Alabama. He then yielded to Mr. Kelley of Pennsylvania, who read the following letter written by Mr. Stanton to Rev. H. Dyer under date of November 18, 1862:

"Your note of the 11th inst. has remained unanswered because of pressure of business which left me neither time nor strength to respond. When Gen. McClellan failed to obey the order of the President to move against the enemy given on October 1, I thought he ought to be removed upon the spot. Nearly a month, time enough to have had a victorious camp, was lost by his disobedience of orders. When his creatures, and those who are enemies of the country, undertook to apologize for his delay by the false pretense that he needed supplies that were held from him by the War Department, my duty to the country required the exposure of the falsehood, and I demanded a report on the subject from the General-in-Chief. It is not my fault that he was not removed before the New York election, after his disobedience of orders. In respect to any combination by Mr. Chase, Mr. Seward and myself against Gen. McClellan, it is utterly false, for reasons not necessary to mention. Fire and water would as soon combine. Each does his duty as he deems right. In respect to the imputation of selfish or ambitious motives denial is needless. Those who make the imputation do it ignorant of my principles of action or with prejudiced feelings, and like all other public men I must be misinterpreted and bear misconstruction and false report. In respect to the present condition of affairs, all I can say is that the whole power of the Government is being put forth with more vigor, and I think more earnestness, on the part of military commanders than at any former period. Treason is encouraged in the Northern States by the just discontent of the people. But believing our national destiny is as immediately in the hands of the Most High as ever were the Children of Israel, I am not only undismayed, but full of hope. For myself, turning neither to the right hand nor to the left, serving no man and at enmity with none, I shall strive to perform my whole duty in the great work. Mistakes and faults I no doubt may commit, but the purpose of my actions shall be single to the public good."

Mr. Wise of Virginia regretted that the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Wheeler) had furnished the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Hepburn) with an opportunity to fight over again the issues of 1861. He only wished to remark to the gentleman from Iowa, who had sought many occasions to make flings at the South, that brave men and honorable men never struck a prostrate foe. He did not know what part the gentlemen took in the Union army except as he found it given in the Congressional Directory, but one thing was certain, that the gentleman bore on his body no proofs that he had ever led a desperate charge, and he did not think from the gentleman's conduct here that it was likely he ever would.

Mr. Henderson of Iowa: My colleague may bear no scars, but no soldier who went from Iowa was more at the front than he.

Mr. Wise: I take his history as written by himself, and certainly his biographer was partial.

Mr. Wise then proceeded to speak on the bill and earnestly impressed upon the majority the propriety and necessity for a rehabilitation of the navy.

A BIG NIGHT BLAZE.

A Partial Destruction of Excelsior Block, Charlotte, Mich.—Fires Elsewhere.

CHARLOTTE, Mich., June 18.—Fire broke out in the Excelsior block at 10 o'clock last night, and in spite of the local Fire Department continued to burn till the Jackson and Battle Creek Fire Departments each sent engines. The building was occupied by Cole & Jones, clothiers; Darin & Murray, boots and shoes; Howard A. Blackman, druggist; Western Union Telegraph Office and Central Telephone Exchange, and several offices. The buildings were owned by Dr. P. D. Patterson and M. Hudson. The loss is nearly $50,000. Frank Silverwood, a carpenter, who was helping the firemen to fight the flames, fell from the third story to the pavement and sustained injuries which must prove fatal. In his fall he struck Clement Higby, who is also severely injured.

A Block Burned.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Evening Journal's Elgin (Ill.) special says: The Bosworth Block was partially burned this morning, causing a loss on the building of $8,000 and to occupants $20,000. Company E, Third Regiment Illinois State troops, occupying the third story, lost their guns, equipments and uniforms.

Suicide or Accident?

NEW YORK, June 18.—Joseph Hart, the 17-year-old son of Frank Hart, who is associated with his brother, "Josh" Hart, in the management of the Theatre Comique, shot and killed himself this morning at his residence on One Hundred and Nineteenth street. On the floor of his bedroom were a revolver and a piece of chamois, and the supposition is that the weapon was accidentally discharged while the lad was cleaning it.

An Anti-Gladstone Candidate at Aylesbury Rejected—Chamberlain and the Radical Union—The Premier's Alleged Promise to the Dissenters to Disestablish the English Church if They Support Home Rule—Aid for the Vancouver Fire Sufferers—The Cholera in Spain—Foreign News.

LONDON, June 18.—Mr. Chamberlain delivered a speech at the inauguration of the new Radical Union last night. Mr. Trevelyan and other members of the House of Commons sent letters of apology for their absence. The meeting appointed an Executive Committee, and Mr. Chamberlain was chosen President. Mr. Chamberlain then said: "It is some compensation to me in the bitterness of much abuse, which has come from unexpected quarters, to know that I still retain the confidence of a great number of friends. I think it desirable and necessary to extend our programme until we make it conterminous with the Radical programme of the whole party."

ROSEBERY AT GLASGOW.

Earl Rosebery addressed a crowded meeting at Glagow last night. He said that although the Liberals in Parliament were divided, he did not believe that the masses of Liberals in the country were divided. The Government appealed to them with the watchwords "Union and Liberty" as against "Centralization and Coercion." He asked them to remember that they were not asked to vote for the details of the Government scheme. The Hartington manifesto inculcated the old policy of "brimstone and treacle."

SOUR GRAPES.

The Times this morning, referring to Mr. Gladstone's campaign tour, says: "It is undeniable that within its limits the pilgrimage of passion has thus far been a success. The crowds to meet Mr. Gladstone have been greater than ever before and personal enthusiasm as great. This surprises nobody, but the pushing and cheering of workmen is no answer to the great question."

HARCOURT TO HIS CONSTITUENTS.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his address to his Derby constituents says that the British people could not expect that the Irish would quietly submit to the Marquis of Salisbury's policy of "twenty years of resolute and unflinching Government" in Ireland.

AN ANTI-GLADSTONE CANDIDATE REJECTED.

The Liberal Association of Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, to-day heard read the election address of Ferdinand D. Rothschild, the Aylesbury member of the House of Commons. He was returned as a Liberal, but opposed Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill and indorses the Unionist policy. The address was rejected, and the association adopted a resolution declaring that it would reject any candidate who would not give reliable pledges that he would support Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons.

It is stated that Mr. Gladstone has promised the dissenters that he will disestablish the English Church if they will enable him to settle and get rid of the Irish problem by supporting the home rule.

IRELAND AND SELF-GOVERNMENT.

BIRMINGHAM, June 18.—At a crowded meeting last night of persons in favor of granting home rule to Ireland, Mr. Cowen, M. P. for Newcastle-on-Tyne, said he was sure that Ireland would show an aptitude for self-government if home rule were granted, and that even the Fenians would assist in promoting order and unity.

BELLEVILLE NEWS.

Forcing the Cairo Short Line from Its Tracks—Other News Items.

The City Council seems to be determined to open Spring street and force the Cairo Short Line road to seek another location for its tracks and depot. The general opinion among all but Spring street property owners is that the Council will make a mistake that will be very detrimental to the city's interest should they take any such action as is now contemplated. If the depot and tracks are removed, though the value of property on Spring street may be slightly enhanced, the business interests of the city are bound to suffer.

Swindlers Caught.

ST. PAUL, June 18.—Two men from New York, named Collins, were arrested at Fergus Falls last night by detectives. To-day it is alleged that the men have been operating for several months in Minnesota under the name of J. B. Carey & Co., and succeeded in swindling a large number of people. In May, it is claimed, they bought a large amount of goods from a Chicago firm, had them shipped to Red Wing and then reshipped them to various small towns, intending to follow them, and as they paid nothing for them all they sold would be clear profit. The detective who arrested them said they were known all over New York, having their headquarters at Tarrytown.

IT CAME OUT.

The Alleged Proof of Dr. Sonneschein's Unitarianism Published.

The Jewish Free Press is enjoying exciting little episodes that would make life interesting even for the rabid editor of an anarchist sheet. The Sonneschein investigation moving along but slowly, it seemed necessary to make some more definite charges than had been filling the air for several weeks. The paper has been holding as a sort of Damocles' sword above Dr. Sonneschein's neck, some letter from prominent Unitarians in Boston, which it was threatened would show that the St. Louis rabbi was an apostate and unfit to preach in a Jewish pulpit. The publication of these letters was expected last week but for some reason it failed to materialize. During this week it came to the ears of Dr. Sonneschein's friends that these letters would be published in the next issue, and yesterday they circulated around quite lively trying to serve an injunction against the paper. They didn't manage to get sight of the editor or the publisher and that way of stopping the publication was abandoned. The paper came out this morning, and contained what is the substance of the charges. They deal entirely with Dr. Sonneschien's attitude toward Judaism, and tell nothing more than the rabbi himself told the public in an interview published in the POST-DISPATCH several weeks ago when his alleged apostasy was first broached.

Rabbi Schindler of Boston has all along been held up as the authority for these charges of apostasy. In his published letter the only definite statement he made was that Rev. J. Minat Savage of Boston had told him that Dr. Sonneschein had said that the Jewish pulpit was too narrow for him, and that he could not remain a Jewish minister because he was opposed to the right of circumcision and because several men had been elected into the Board of Trustees with whom he could not agree. Rabbi Schindler then says: "The question was then touched whether he would be willing to submit to baptism, which he refused to do, as he was as much opposed to baptism as he was to circucision."

Nowhere in his communication does the Boston rabbi say that Dr. Sonneschein ever made any direct proposition to enter the Unitarian ministry. Rev. Mr. Savage was then appealed to for proof and wrote that Dr. Sonneschein in his conversations wished to find out the positions and tendencies of Unitarianism, so that if driven out of the synagogue he might know whether there would be any other field left for him as a preacher. The Secretary of the American Unitarian Association also writes that Dr. Sonneschein never made an application to preach as a Unitarian. He bore a letter which, if he remembered rightly, was from Dr. Eliot.

The most peculiar thing about the entire publication of charges is the deposition of a gentleman whose name is not given, nor is the name of the notary public published. It is, however, stated to be duly sworn to and subscribed. This deposition reiterates the charges of Unitarian leanings already published in the POST-DISPATCH, but contains one new statement, viz., that Dr. Sonneschein in one of his conferences in Boston was asked whether his record would bear investigation, because, in the event of his going over to another faith, his record would be gone into and be torn to pieces by his opponents, and they wanted to know whether he could stand that. It is said that when the full scope of such a record investigation dawned on the Doctor he stopped the pursuit of a Unitarian pulpit. Considerable capital is made in this publication of the fact that Dr. Sonneschein said circumcision is a meaningless rite, but in the POST-DISPATCH interview he publicly announced that his idea was to form an American Hebrew church in which the Abrahamic rite would have no place.

STRUCK WITH A CLUB.

An Inoffensive Italian Beaten on a Boat by a Deck Hand.

The steamer White Eagle, anchored at the foot of Olive street, was the scene about 5:30 o'clock this morning of a probable murder. About that hour Nosio Lombardo, an Italian who cannot speak a work of English, wandered on to the boat, prompted merely by curiosity. While he was standing on the deck, gazing at the big bridge and the boats in the river, he was approached by a deck-hand named Albert C. Jamison, who informed him that he would have to leave The Italian, not understanding what was said to him, merely nodded, and Jamison thinking that he would obey the order, walked away. When about five minutes afterward he returned and found the Italian still standing in the same place he became greatly enraged, and walking up to him told him that if he did not leave the boat immediately he would get hurt. Lombardo only looked at him, and Jamison picked up a club which was lying on the deck, and dealt him a terrific blow on the side of the head, felling him like an ox. Lombardo, dazed, and fearing further punishment, managed to get to his feet and staggered off the boat and up the Levee. When he reached the foot of Olive street he fell from weakness and Officer McCarthy was summoned. The Italian informed him by means of signs of what had happened, and after he had been brought to the Chestnut Street Station Officers McCarthy and Duffy went back to the boat and succeeded in effecting Jamison's arrest. Lombardo was sent to the City Hospital and his recovery is doubtful. The side of his head on which he received the blow was not cut, owing to the tickness of the club with which Jamison had dealt him the blow, but was as soft as jelly. The club was about three feet long and about eight inches in circumference.

AT THE RACES.

A TOUT WHO NAMED ALL THE HORSES FOR STRAIGHT AND PLACE YESTERDAY.

The Favorites Not as Successful as They Have Been on Other Days—Betters Trying to Get Back Their Irish Pat Money—Gossip of the Track.

Judges—Charles Green, Julius S. Walsh and John M. Scullin.

Timers—Milton Young, Maj. Thomas and Capt. Cottrill.

Starter—J. G. Sheridan.

A lovely afternoon and a good programme attracted a large attendance to the Fair Grounds track yesterday afternoon. The ladies, as was to have been expected, turned out in force and the grand stand and club-house balconies presented a beautiful appearance. The magnificent toilets of the ladies, representing all the hues of the rainbow, gazed upon from the field made the grand stand look like one huge animated bouquet—a sight once seen to be remembered for all time. The sweet strains discoursed by the orchestra, the presence of the mettlesome and blue blooded racers, the delightfully cool and pleasant breeze which passed zephyr-like over the grounds, all combined to make it the most enjoyable afternoon of the meeting. The track, from the late heavy rains, was rather lumpy and slow, but all of the five races on the card were both interesting and exciting.

THE RACING.

The first race was nine furlongs, in which Freeman, Irish Pat, John A., Revoke and War Sign faced the flag. John A. was first choice in the betting with Freeman and Irish Pat on even terms, Revoke selling at long odds and War Sign reluctantly taken at any price. The horses were sent on their journey on a very even start. War Sign, shooting to the front and making the pace during the entire route, was beaten under the wire by Freeman by only a scant head in 2:03¼, Revoke third, while the favorite and Irish Pat were at the tail end of the hunt.

The second race was a dash of a mile for maidens with allowances, and brought out War Fellow, Handy Andy, Macala, Mary Ellis, Hortense, Clonee and Venista. Betting on the result was quite lively, Macala, Mary Ellis and War Fellow all having plenty of friends, who chucked in their money in such lumps as to keep the pencilers busy changing the figures, and it was a hard matter to tell who really was the favorite when the bell rang them up for the start. The race, however, was a hard fight between Macala, Handy Andy and Clonee, who, after a most desperate struggle up the stretch, finished in the order named. Time, 1.49¼.

The third was the Cotton Exchange Stakes, for 2-year-olds, three quarters of a mile, which proved to be one of the most exciting races of the meeting. The starters and betting in pools were Terra Cotta, $10; Gracie D., $2; Ross, $21; Nellie C., $20; Red Bell, $5; Pendennis, $16; Laredo, $40; Montrose $75 and Councillor $23. Mr. Sheridan was fortunate enough to get the fractious youngsters off in a bunch, in which manner they raced until rounding into the stable turn, when they began to tail out. After swinging into the home stretch Montrose took front place and retained it with ease to the finish, Clonce second and Laredo third. Time, 1:19.

The fourth was a selling race of three-quarters of a mile for 2-year-olds, which brought to the post six starters, namely: Jaubert, Clarion, Little Hopes, Visit, Virginia and Petite. This was one of the most lively betting races of the week, Jaubert finding any amount of friends who could not get their money in on him fast enough at evens against the field. Like many apparent sure things, however, it failed to materialize and the favorite was compelled to lower his colors to Clarion, a fine-looking son of Whisper and Clarita, in 1:20, Virginia third.

The last race was a dash of one mile with penalties and allowances, and like the preceding one proved a surprise to the knowing ones, as it was captured by a comparative outsider. The entries were: Mamie Hunt, $16; Belle Pate, $27; Endurer $75; Bootblack, $25; Highflight, 30; Top Sawyer, $10; Gold Flea, $11; Boaz, $35; Carrie Belle. $5. Top Sawyer acted badly at the starting post and gave Mr. Sheridan and his assistant considerable trouble. After several breakaways the flag fell to a fair start. On reaching the first turn Bootblack, Mamie Hunt, Highflight and Endurer showed in the first platoon. Racing down the home stretch Mamie Hunt took front place and looked like a winner, but she was soon challenged by Bootblack, who beat the party home by a neck.

TO-MORROW'S RACES.

The following is the programme for to-morrow, the last day of the meeting:

First race; purse $400, of which $50 to second, for all ages; for horses that have run and have not won at this meeting; one mile and one-sixteenth.

Second race, adolphus Busch Stakes, $500; sweepstakes for 3-year-old fillies (foals of 1883), $25 to each, half forfeit, with $500 added by Mr. Adolphus Busch of St. Louis, Mo., the second horse to receive $100 out of the stakes; winners of any 3-year-old stake race of the value of $1,000 to carry 8 lbs., of $1,500 5 lbs., of three or more races of any value 7 lbs. extra; starters must be named through the entry box thirty minutes after the last race on the day previous to the race, at the Secretary's office on the track; one mile and one-eighth; closed with fifty subscribers.

Fourth race, St. Louis Brewers' Cup, $500; sweepstakes for all ages, $100 each, half forfeit, or only $20 if declared on or before April 1, 1886 (all declarations void unless accompanied by the money), with $1,500 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to third; 3-year-olds to carry 90 lbs., 4-year-olds 108 lbs., 5-year-olds and upward 114 lbs; sex allowances; winners of any cup in 1886 to carry 5 lbs., of two or more 7 lbs. extra; maidens at time of starting allowed 5 lbs.; two and a quarter miles; closed with twenty-one subscribers.

Fifth race, free handicap steeplechase, $500; $25 each if not declared out, with $500 added; $100 to second, $50 to third; entries to be made thirty minutes after the last race on the eighth day, weights to be announced at 4 o'clock p. m., and declarations to be made by thirty minutes after the last race on the ninth day of the meeting at the Secretary's office on the track; three horses of different interest to start or no race; full steeplechase course.

THE IRISH PAT MONEY.

Betters Who Want To, but Won't Recover Their Money Through the Justices.

Robert W. Goode, representing five betters who objected to the decision of the Judges on the Irish Pat matter, sought to enter suit in Justice's Courts in attachment against the book-makers, who retained money bet on Irish Pat, by reason of his decision. Mr. Goode took the suits to Justices Sheehan, McCaffery and Ryan, all refusing to try the cases. The ground of this refusal was their objection to the bond for costs offered. The costs would amount to over $10 in each case, and the probability was that the constable could find nothing to levy on. Justice McCaffery said he bet on the races and lost. If the other betters did not have nerve enough to stand their losses, they could not use his court for recovery.

IN THE PADDOCK.

Volante to Start in the Brewers' Cup if He Wins To-Day—Gossip.

The result of the fourth race yesterday, when the chestnut colt Clarion came under the wire about half a length ahead of Jaubert, was a genuine surprise to the betting people, who had played Jaubert to win. The book-makers evidently entertained similar expectations, for the odds they gave on the chestnut colt were very inviting. In early stages of the game some of the nerviest book-makers in the stand went as high as 8 to 1 against Clarion, but this did not last very long, and they dropped it to 7, then to 6, a little later to 5, and finally they came down to 4, when the betting closed. Jaubert was the favorite in the race and the odds were 3 to 4 against him to win and 1 to 3 for a place. Clarion's owner is said to have remarked that his colt was more than likely to turn out a winner and that he had backed his opinion to the extent of $500. Several bets were made on the strength of this tip and those who laid them had no reason for regret.

A mysterious colored boy was floating around the paddock, the lawn and the betting stand and exchanging information for money yesterday, and judging by the eagerness with which he was sought after each race his information must certainly have been from the right source, for, with a single exception of one horse which he had predicted for a place, he called every winner and second horse that ran. Quite a number of his admirers, relying faithfully on his "tips," bet heavily upon the horses he named and came out ahead on the races. When he was asked how he did it he grinned knowingly and replied that anybody with common sense could do the same thing if they only watched closely how the horses worked and took into consideration the riding abilities of the jockeys who mounted them.

"I come out here every morning," said he, "and see how the critters run. If you want to be able to pick winners just you do the same thing. I go with the races all over the country and I know what every horse on this track can do. Then, folks talk about stable tips. Stable tips ain't worth nothing. You take a man with good judgement and a man what knows what horseflesh is, and you bet if he can't call 'em nobody can."

This was immediately before the fourth race, and when a man with a white plug hat and a flashy suit of clothes asked him for his tip on this race, he replied:

"Well, Clarion comes in first and Jaubert second. Jaubert can't win this race if he tried."

The fourth race on to-morrow's programme will be an interesting one. It is the Brewers' Cup, the value being $1,500. The distance is two miles and one-quarter. Both Tyrant and Volante are entered, but only one of them, in the strongest probability, will prove a starter. In conversation with a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning Manager McClellan of the Baldwin stable confirmed the generally spoken opinion that Volante was in prime condition, but said he could not say whether he would start in the cup to-morrow or not.

"It all depends on to-day's race with Tyrant," said Mr. McClellan. "If Volante wins he will then undoubtedly start in the Brewers' Cup to-morrow. If he loses the race"—and the stable manager smiled a sickly smile as if the very thought induced a cold perspiration—"why, then there won't be any use in putting him in."

MONEY.

NEW YORK, June 18, 11 a. m.—The stock market opened rather heavy this morning. Unusual strength developed immediately in New York Central and the remainder of the market followed suit and for the first half hour there was an active and strong market, New York Central advancing in this time 1¼ per cent and the reminder of the active list ¼ to ¾ per cent. The advance and activity were then checked and a reaction set in, prices yielding slowly, the decline from the best figures amounting to ⅛ to ⅝ per cent. At 11 a. m. the market is fairly active and heavy.

NEW YORK, June 18, noon.—Money on call is easy at 1½@2½ per cent. Bar silver 98. The stock market after 11 o'clock became steady and gradually quieted down, becoming dull before the half hour was passed. Pacific Mail, however, came into prominence, doing more business than any other stock and remaining strong. After the first half hour, however, there was a spirit of activity among the Grangers and moderate advances were made. At noon the market is active and firm. United States 3s, 101⅛; do 4s, reg., 125⅛; do 4s, coupon, 126⅛; do 4½s, reg., 111⅛; do 4½s, coupon, 111⅜; Pacific 6s of '95, 125½.

NEW YORK, June 18, 3 p. m.—The market continued active and advances in prices occurred from noon to 1 o'clock, but after that hour dullness set in and prices of many stocks were carried down below the noon figures. Later there was another advance, Union Pacific assuming the lead, and scoring by 2 p. m. an advance of 1½ per cent. Lackawanna also rallied sharply. The market, after 2:15, became quiet and prices yielded slowly while Lake Shore and Union Pacific were decidedly weak, losing ⅝@¾ per cent respectively. The market closed steady at fractional declines from the best of the day.

AN ADVANCE.

Wheat Sells Higher on Wet Weather in Europe.

Special by Telegraph from Pickering & Co., Chicago, to the POST-DISPATCH.

CHICAGO, June 18, 1 p. m.—The curb was so weak last night that the opening found most of the boys short and when Gifford's and Lester's folks began buying there was a scramble by the scalpers to cover. No one knew what the buying was on, but later it appeared that Lester had several wet cables, though the public cables said nothing about it and the way Cush Gifford took it he must have had an enormous order to buy from some quarter. After the top had been reached then the talk was Ream had been a heavy seller. There must have been some truth in the report about wet weather the other side, for all the foreign houses both here and in New York have had buying orders and London is strong and a half penny up on No. 2 red. Seventy-five and one-fourth cents was reached for August without much trouble, and after it broke back half a cent the rumor went around that Ream had sold out. The weather is simply superb, and all the news from the wheat fields is of the most encouraging nature. Prime's report says spring wheat was injured by drouth before rains came, and Nightingale's cable says wheat declining, no buyers, forced sales knocking prices down and imports too large to admit of any advance. On the advance the scalpers have sold and Gifford sold his "Jag" when the market touched 75c the first time. Another cable says weather in France rather unfavorable, but no damage yet, and the Continent offering wheat freely for forward delivery at low prices. The closing is 74¾c for August.

Corn is heavy, but has been held up by wheat, August being the preferred option. Fleming & Boyden had orders for some July, but filled them without any trouble. If the receipts let us, we may be able to get it out of the rut and a little advance. Report says fifty boats of wheat taken in New York for export, but nothing here.

Cars for to-morrow—4 of wheat, 320 of corn, and 140 of oats.

Closing Prices—3 P. M.

St. Louis Markets.

FORENOON SESSION—CLOSING 1 P. M.

Wheat—After a vain attempt to kill the spring wheat, first by drouth and then by wet weather, Chicago worked up another crop killer this morning and sent it forth to the speculative world under the alliterative title of "Frost at Fargo." As the only effect of this was to jump their own market up at the opening, the other speculative centres barely responding by a show of strength, these Chicago crop-killers should now send out for the fool killer and let him at once go to work on their board. The yield would be about every other man in the wheat pit. Nearly every crop damage report has emanated from the Chicago Board of Trade and it is about time they let up. The winter wheat reports received here were excellent, C. A. King of Toledo sending in a splendid showing covering nearly the whole section. A letter from W. J. Reinicker, Baltimore, to Mauntel, Borgess & Co., stated that the prospects for wheat in Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania were "excellent, and the harvest will be in full blast next week if the weather permits." It is rather strange, however, that with all the talk there has been here about are early harvest, that new wheat has not yet arrived in St. Louis. Last year with a late harvest the first of the new crop came in on June 20, in 1884 on June 16, in 1883 on June 15, in 1882 on June 1 and in 1881 on June 9. This is the 18th, yet not a bushel has put in an appearance. The bulls had something besides crop scares to help them to-day, and this was improving cables and exports. The first cables were dull and Liverpool 1d lower, but private advices were said to be firm. New York reported Continental houses as very heavy buyers and McCormick was informed that London was slightly firmer and that the Continent was firm on wet weather. It was also said that fifty loads had already been worked in New York and that exporters had bought in the past few days in that market 126 loads for prompt shipment. All this may be so, but it is directly opposite to late reports from the other side. Mr. James Bingham of New York, who has just returned from England, stated that when he left the crops were backward, as the weather had been cold and wet, but on account of the unusual moisture a change of weather would be very beneficial. It was a fact demand for spot No. 2 red, but the stock now is held at high prices, so that little could be got. For East side receipts 78c was bid and a 5,000 lot sold, understood to be above 78c.

Corn futures were practically neglected most of the session. It seems impossible to work up any interest among the trade, and parties holding orders find it almost impossible to execute them. The feeling was firm, as other markets were higher, and though receipts continued good, the weather fine and cables dull and neglected. The only sales were for August at 32⅛. July was offered at 31⅛c, bid 30⅞c; September at 33⅛c, bid 33⅛c; year at 30½c, bid 30⅝c. The demand for spot grades was moderate and almost entirely for shipment on orders. Prices were about steady on that selling. No. 2, 30¼@30⅝c regular, 31c in M., 31½c bid St. L. and V.; No. 3, 25c regular, 25½c E. side, 26c in M., 26½c in St. L.; No. 4, 21¾c bid for U., No. 2 white, 33c in U., 34c in St. L.; No. 3 do, 30½c asked for U. and bid this side, 31c for St. L.; no-grade, 18c in M.

Oats—A small trade was worked up in August, it selling early at 24@24⅛c, and later having 24¼c bid; but July, while offered at 24⅝c, had no buyers at over 24¼c. Spot grades were firmer and sold readily to the order that India was selling September and October shipment by hundreds of tons. He saw a number of contracts made, and one house stated that it sold 1,900 tons in one day, an unusually large sale. Business over there was in a bad way, the agricultural interest particularly being very badly off. The depression in the grain trade was more easily seen, as there was not the constant change abroad that there was here." Since Mr. B.'s return the weather has been fair and favorable. Whether the better cables and exports were so or not they served their turn by elevating the markets to a higher plane, Chicago advancing most and their August selling over the same month in St. Louis. Gifford and Lester were the chief buyers in Chicago, and Laden being in New York. The home market took very little stock on the advance or in the news that caused it, and conservative houses at other points wired that the boom was not a healthy one. There was pretty free buying here, but as usual mainly by shorts, who sold freely again on any indications of weakening. It did look very much as though the strength had been built up on manufactured news. Lohrke, one of the most reliable export brokers of New York, wired McCormick that the only Continental buying was a little by Antwerp, that United Kingdom were 1d lower and that no rains had lately failed on the Continent. Francis was also informed that the weather on the Continent was all that could be desired. The effect of these denials was to weaken prices off some late in the session, but the close was firm at ⅜@⅝c above yesterday. July sold at 73½@⅝ to 73¾@⅜c, closing at 73½c; August at 73⅞c to 74⅞c, closing at 74⅝c; September at 75⅝c to 76⅝c, closing at 76⅛c; October at 77⅛c to 77½c. year at 73c and later at 73⅛c was bid. There was an urgent local milling trade. No. 2, 26c in E., 27c in St. L., and later 27c bid for M., 27¼c for St. L.; No. 3, 25c E. side, and later 25¼c bid for E. side, 25½c for St. L.

Provisions—The tone was firmer, as Chicago improved somewhat and the local crowd is rather bullishly inclined and respond readily to encouraging influences. Most of the trading was confined to filling orders. For up country meats there was a good inquiry, but holders asked above what buyers would pay. THE Tennessee Republicans are sound on the Irish question, but they failed to announce their position on the Nebular Hypothesis.

GOV. ALGER of Michigan has a violent attack of the Jeff Davis scare. Perhaps the recent hot spell had something to do with it. The brain should be protected during the intense heat of summer.

THE Supreme Court of Ohio sustains the new Board of Public Affairs, which means that the Kentucky wing of the Ohio Senate accomplished nothing by running away from their posts at a critical time.

THE girl graduates of Vincennes, Ind., who refused to read their graduating essays with a negro have not yet received the expected crushing broadside from the New York Tribune. What can the matter be?

THE Prohibitionists of Maine have nominated Farmer AARON CLARK for Governor, and have adopted a platform expressing gratitude to God for the success of the Prohibition cause in Maine. The degree of success attained is still a matter of serious disagreement.

SOMEBODY has offered to prove the insanity of the late King LUDWIG by showing that he tried to banish some of his subjects to America. If this proves insanity in the case of King LUDWIG what does it prove in the case of BISMARCK who drives so many thousands of his countrymen to America every year?

THERE is not much sense in expunging Congressional speeches from the record. If they make any impression at all, the expunging process doesn't remove them from the minds of the people or the files of the newspapers; and if they attract no notice, they are not worth expunging for obvious reasons. It is right to expunge unworthy and unfit Congressmen at the ballot-box and in no other way does the expunging business count for anything.

THE approaching mission of BEECHER to England is understood to be by way of reprisal for the piratical raids of the British actors, lecturers, poets, æsthetes, canons, historians, novelists and others, who, under the guise of friendly curiosity have levied heavy tributes on American gullibility, and returned home laden with the spoils of the Philistines. Mr. BEECHER goes under the well-worn disguise of a preacher on a vacation; he will be managed by a professional manager and will work the British public for all it is worth.

MR. VERPLANCK, a fanatical Socialistic orator of Chicago, needs restraining when he uses such language as this: "Law is "the code of tyranny. * * * Gods! "how I exult in Chicago's heroic "deeds of the night of May 4!" Such language was cheered by a crowd of Socialists. In the face of such evidence it is apparent that the Chicago authorities have more work before them in the way of suppressing anarchy with penal laws. It is fair to conclude that sentiments which Chicago Socialists cheer to the echo are not very severely condemned by the more orderly Socialists of other cities.

To a large portion of the Massachusetts population, BEN BUTLER is a sort of Old Man of the Sea, to be constantly dreaded. The memory of the time when BUTLER was Governor of Massachusetts is a sort of nightmare with these people, and the recent rumor that he wants to run for the same office again is enough to create a mild panic in their ranks. They will never forget the time when the hero of Fort Fisher and New Orleans figured as their Governor and stirred up the old State as it has not been stirred since the war. It is probable that he raked up old matters too diligently and became too minutely critical about the previous management of public affairs; but it cannot be denied that he effected some salutary reforms, and exposed some things that should have been exposed. For instance, the habit of making brogan shoes from the skins of paupers was such a harsh way of competing with legitimate tan-yards that it called for exposure and suppression. It was here that BUTLER got in his most startling work; and if he should become Governor again, he would doubtless resume his old habit of uncovering things and shaking up the old Bay State.

THE TARIFF VOTE.

The motion to take up the Morrison tariff bill for consideration was defeated in the House yesterday by a vote of 157 to 140, the majority vote being cast by 122 Republicans and 35 Democrats. Of those voting for consideration, 136 were Democrats and 4 Republicans. Counting the paired members who did not vote we find that the House stood 154 for and 169 against any effort to revise the tariff at this session, when that body contains 184 Democrats and 140 Republicans, a Democratic majority of 44.

The measure thus defeated by a coalition of a minority of the Democrats with the Republicans, was a carefully prepared compromise measure, drawn with a view to harmonize differences on the tariff question and secure its passage through both houses. It adhered to the protective principle and was framed to offer substantial advantages to the manufacturing interests while effecting needful reforms by removing excessive and oppressive war taxes that inure to the benefit of monopolies only. The Democratic party was pledged in its platform to some such revision of the tariff. A Democratic President and Secretary of the Treasury had both urged Congress to such action. This bill was an attempt to redeem the party pledge and to carry out the recommendations of a Democratic administration. Moreover, it was not a finality, and the House was only asked to consider and amend the bill according to its own views of tariff reform policy.

An adverse vote on this proposition was just such a triumph of the Opposition over the Administration party as was witnessed when GLADSTONE'S home rule bill was refused a second reading. It was just such a defeat as compels a dominant party in England to surrender its control of the Government and order the election of a new House. The meaning of the vote in this case is plainly opposition to a Democratic revision of the tariff, if it does not indeed mean that, on the tariff question, the House is Republican and not Democratic.

When RANDALL'S forty-one Democrats voted with the Republicans against considering a tariff bill in the preceding Congress, they had the fair excuse that Democratic revision under a Republican administration and a Republican Senate was impracticable, and that the party should abide the initiative of a Democratic National Convention and a Democratic administration. In voting now against any attempt to redeem the promises of such convention and administration, the thirty-five Democrats co-operating with the Republicans have but one seemingly fair excuse, and that is the lateness of the session and the probability that consideration would only lead to a long and fruitless debate, delaying other business.

POWDERLY'S PROTEST.

Mr. POWDERLY is still trying to correct the false impressions afloat in regard to the proceedings of the Cleveland Convention of the Knights of Labor, and he speaks severely of the misrepresentations sent out by the Associated Press agents from that place. It seems that a lot of expelled members who were disappointed in getting the Cleveland meeting to overrule the action of the local assemblies which had expelled them, revenged themselves by cramming the reporters with the stuff which the Associated Press agents sent out about rows between the Knights and the Labor Unions, between the disorderly extremists of the order and the Powderly men, and about the alleged success of the extremists in controlling the body and electing an executive committee of POWDERLY'S enemies, etc. All of which stories, it appears, were fictions, there being no such rows or proceedings, and Mr. POWDERLY being delighted with the action and animus of the convention and confident that the work done there would greatly promote the harmony, strength and success of the organization.

The fact is, that some newspapers which had taken a fierce and bitter part against the Knights in the strike controversy were hungry for just such matter as the Associated Press cooked up at Cleveland, and were prepared to supplement it with more of the same sort in the form of "specials" from their ablest "campaign liars." They had undertaken the ungracious task of inflaming the public against strikers and labor organizations generally and against the Knights of Labor especially. Hence the stories with which they disseminated the idea that the organization had passed under the control of turbulent mobocrats, boycotters and conspirators against social order.

That meeting was called at the end of a misdirected and disastrous struggle, which had engrossed public attention for months. It was convoked under the chastening influence of defeat to rescue the order from the errors and dangers in which hot blood and strife and green leadership had involved it. That such rescue should be effected was certainly the wish of all who are friendly to the elevation of labor by wholesome and well-directed organization. The journals that were eager to gloat over the failure of the meeting, and that tried to make it a failure by gross misrepresentations, betrayed a spirit and purpose which should put the masses on their guard against all such political teachers and leaders.

THE RECONQUEST OF IRELAND.

"It would be repugnant to employ the "Queen's forces to compel unwilling people "to submit to a government arising out of "a system of cruel outrage and terrorism," says an address to the Liverpool electors on the Irish question. These words seem to be a distinct repudiation of the coercion system of goverment that has been so long imposed on the unwilling people of Ireland. But the writer is Lord DERBY, urging Liberals to oppose Home Rule because a small handful of Orangemen in Ireland are opposed to it. They are the "unwilling people" whose wishes should, in his opinion, control the policy of the Imperial Parliament toward Ireland. The murderous rioters of Belfast and Lurgan are the men whom he would let have their own way, without opposition from the Queen's forces. As for the nine-tenths of Ireland's people who are not Orangemen, he considers a system of cruel outrage and terrorism good enough for them, and boldly declares that "the reconquest of Ireland has become inevitable." Although Great Britain has been constantly engaged in the reconquest of Ireland for about 250 years, Lord DERBY would persevere in that never-ending, still-beginning work for several centuries longer, rather than try for a season the simple experiment of governing Ireland according to the wishes of the great majority of her people. The only coercion he opposes is the coercion of a small minority rebelling against law and imperial authority. This is what the Unionists, whether Tory, Whig or Radical, all seem to mean when they deny that they are for coercion. In spite of that denial they let us know through the declarations of one of their most eminent leaders that their alternative for Home Rule is "the reconquest of Ireland."

ONE of the methods by which Mr. GOULD obtains the political influence he wields so profitably to himself in New York, in Missouri and at Washington, was exposed when his donation of $100,000 to buy votes for GARFIELD became known in connection with the subsequent appointment of his candidate to a seat on the bench of the United States Supreme Court. And now the fact that he gave $50,000 to be used in corrupting the Tammany organization and securing New York's electoral votes for BLAINE instead of CLEVELAND, leaks out through a squabble over the distribution of the boodle. The result in that State was such a disappointment to Mr. GOULD that he became satisfied that his money had not been used as intended, and prominent Republicans tracing the money are now charging that JOHN J. O'BRIEN and R. G. MCCORD, to whom it was entrusted by GOULD'S agent, played a confidence game on him, and had no such arrangement with Tammany leaders as they claimed to have. It seems that they diverted about $30,000 of the "stuff" to purposes of election bribery, and are now asked to explain what they did with the rest and what was accomplished with the distributed portion. Mr. GOULD'S known agents are just now very busy in fixing up Democratic nominations in Missouri for Judges, members of the Legislature and members of Congress.

MR. BLAINE'S unofficial utterances rattle around the world, while STEPHEN GROVER CLEVELAND'S Presidential observations excite no attention at home or abroad. It is not always the man who is elected who picks up the power and the glory.—[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The trouble with Mr. BLAINE is that his utterances and his literary exploits rattle too far for his own good. The "rattling" power of a man, especially a politician, is not an accurate measure of his greatness. The Mulligan letters made a great noise in the world, and yet it is too soon to regard them as enduring monuments of glory. There can be found in this country to-day thousands of good and pious men who have not half the "rattling" capacity of Mr. JAEHNE or HERR MOST.

IN graduating from the Vincennes High School to-day, Miss GRACE BREWER stands "solitary and alone" because she is a colored girl, and her white classmates, eight in number, all refuse to appear in public on the stage with her to receive their diplomas and deliver their addresses. It is said that the fathers of these girls—five Republicans and three Democrats—all sustain the action of their daughters in withdrawing and refusing to "graduate with a nigger." Vincennes is in the State of Indiana, which was governed during the war by Oliver P. Morton and has never been reconstructed.

MR. DORMAN B. EATON in writing to Mr. SAMUEL RANDALL made this assertion: "It is astonishing how much trouble some "members (of Congress) will take to help "women to places, especially if they "are pretty." If this is true, it is fair to conclude that the women employed by the Government are remarkable for a high degree of average beauty; and good looks will be more highly prized than ever by ladies who aspire to serve their country as Government employes. The Eatonian view of the matter would make it appear that æsthetic considerations are not without weight in governing the appointment of female applicants.

Serving Two Masters.

From the New York Herald.

Some day Congress may think it right to go even a step further, and prohibit Senators and Representatives from pleading before United States courts or before heads of departments or bureaus, for any corporation or person, during their term of office. A Senator who leaves his place in the Senate to appeal to the Supreme Court to put over a case and delay costly and already protracted litigation, on the ground that he has not had time to prepare himself to argue it, or a Senator who pleads before a Commissioner of Patents or Lands, whom, perhaps, he has voted to confirm in office, is not a pleasant sight. A Senator who on one day argues the case of his clients in the Supreme Court and the next day argues it in the Senate is not a pleasant sight either.

The public which is not blind, understands very well that Senators are hired by wealthy corporations, not because they are great lawyers, but because they are Senators. The Bar of the Supreme Court knows very well that while there are many lawyers in the Senate there are very few great lawyers there. The popular belief that the Senate contains a number of very able lawyers is a mere superstition. There is nothing in it. There are not more than two or three lawyers in the present Senate who could make a respectable income at law if their political connections were cut off. Nobody knows this better than the gentlemen of the Senate themselves.

Big Injun, Ugh!

From the Boston Record.

A garden party was held at Gen. Logan's house a few weeks ago for the benefit of the Garfield Hospital. The presiding genius of the cigar booth was a lady celebrated in Washington society for her wit and beauty. She is an especial favorite of Gen. Logan's, and the latter spent most of the evening lounging about the booth, where he was permitted to make himself comfortable. Later in the evening a party of gentlemen strolled over to the booth in search of the General. They found him standing at the side entrance, rigid as a statue and apparently in a brown study. He held his cigar between his teeth, but was too much absorbed in thought to keep it alight.

"What have you done with the General?" inquired one of the party, addressing the lady manageress. The lady pointed in the General's direction.

"'Sh!" was the irreverent reply. "I'm using him for a cigar sign. Don't you think he makes a good 'injun?'"

The Famous Hairy Family of Burmah.

From the Court Journal.

Ex-King Theebaw's famous hairy family, which he long kept jealously at Mandalay, are coming to Europe for exhibition. The family have been renowned in Burmese history for many years, and the present members, a mother and son, form the fourth generation known. The mother, Maphon, is 63, quite blind, and usually sits motionless on a platform, occasionally fanning herself, and speaking in a low, sweet voice.

She was seen and described by Col. Yule when on a mission to the Court of Ava in 1855. Save her hands and feet she is covered with long, soft hair like her son, Mo-po-sin, who is covered even to the drums of his ears, the hair in some places being five inches long. Mo-po-sin is of medium height, with pale brown skin, and is fairly friendly, having been partly educated and married to a maid of honor. Neither he nor his mother has either canine teeth or grinders.

She Hustled.

From the Wall Street News.

A California widow who put her all into a deal in stocks and was shrunk out, called upon her broker and said:

"When will this thing probably come out in the papers?"

"To-morrow, doubtless."

"How long can you suppress it?"

"Why, I might keep it out two days, but not longer."

"Only two days? That's pretty short notice, but I'm a hustler when I get my bonnet on. I'll depend on the two days."

On the third day the papers chronicled her loss and her wedding on the same page.

Power of a Post-Office.

Gen. Ben Butler Interviewed.

A fly in a teacup makes as much of a commotion as a whale does in the ocean. The three-hundred-dollar Post-office is as significant a matter to the community about the cross-roads as the appointment of a Cabinet Minister or the election of a Governor of State is to the wider community. The possession of the right to handle the letters of a country-side place is the badge of party success for which these contests of years have been waged. As long as they remain unchanged or some negative man in the party is elected to fill them, there will be a feeling of disappointment that weakens the party and the Executive who represents it.

Nova Scotia's High Tariff and Prostration.

From the Halifax Chronicle.

Previous to confederation Nova Scotia had the lowest tariff and was in the best financial condition of any of the provinces entering the Union. To-day Nova Scotia has the highest tariff and is in the worst financial condition of any of the provinces in the Union. Is it any wonder that the mutterings of discontent among our people have at last swelled into a storm of indignant remonstrance that will presently, if the voice of a free people asking for justice can be heard, put an end at once and forever to this disastrous Union?

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying This Morning.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The WORLD says: "The House Committee on Public Lands has not been captured by Senator Chaffee. When the tender-hearted bill to forfeit a small per cent of the Northern Pacific's land steal reached the committee, it struck out all after the enacting clause and inserted the House bill, which proposes to forfeit all the company's unearned grants. The atmosphere about Washington is growing wholesome."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "By a majority of seventeen the House of Representatives yesterday refused to take up Mr. Morrison's tariff bill and make it a subject of discussion. This is a wise conclusion. It would be impossible at this period of the session to give to such a bill the prolonged and minute debate and examination which would be necessary before bringing the House to a decision upon its merits. Better put it off."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "Has the Republican party in Maine ceased to be a prohibition party? Some of the Prohibitionists seem to think so, and have set about organizing a party of their own. They held a convention at Portland yesterday, made up of 198 delegates representing sixty-six cities and towns and fourteen counties, and declared that both old parties 'contain a new element which will not allow the enforcement of the prohibitory law,' and that 'the Republican party is afraid to enforce the law.' This is a sufficient admission that the law is not in fact enforced, though the platform mildly states that 'in the principal cities of the State there is no impartial enforcement of the law.' It is a notorious fact that the enforcement is very partial indeed, but if the sentiment of the people in favor of it is not strong enough to induce either of the parties, into which they are divided politically, to enforce prohibition, how is it to be done by a mere handful of Prohibitionists acting independently and with no chance of controlling the machinery of the law?"

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "Mr. Morrison is not willing to accept as final the defeat of his tariff bill yesterday. He gave notice that he should renew the motion to consider the bill on Tuesday next. No doubt, the opponents of the measure, as Mr. McKenley promised, will be on hand at that time and in as strong force as they were yesterday. But it is worthy of Mr. Morrison's most serious consideration what he has to gain by prolonging the agitation on his question at so late a period in the session. He can indeed to some extent prolong the uncertainty which now causes and for many months has caused serious depression of industry. He can indeed nurse the hopes of importers, who have fancied that a Democratic victory would mean for them a complete triumph over American industries. But he cannot strengthen himself within his own party by continued efforts to force the consideration of an unwelcome measure, and by blocking the action of the House upon other questions about which members are anxious, even though he may succeed in many times reiterating the proof that the President cannot influence his nearest friends and the representatives of his party from his own State."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The N. G. Road.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DEAR SIR—Will you kindly say if there is any redress when our surburban railroads take their regular passenger trains for switching purposes, and compel their patrons to accept the following accommodations. The West End Narrow Gauge Railway, which, according to its schedule, should have left St. Louis at 9:30 o'clock Thursday evening, arrived twenty minutes late, the engine being sandwiched between a passenger car on one end and two flats loaded with ties on the other. It started out thirty minutes late, with but one small and dirty coach, crowded almost to suffocation with their own section hands who enlivened the trip out by carousing and literally painting the car with tobacco juice, to the utter disgust of lady passengers, who were either compelled to go this way or not at all.

If the subject is of sufficient importance the undersigned will be happy to give you any number of names of prominent gentlemen living along the route, who will doubtless furnish additional and interesting information regarding the trifling management of the road, and the many abuses that are heaped, seemingly without recourse, upon its suffering and compulsory patrons. PLYMOUTH'S PASTOR.

HENRY WARD BEECHER CHATS ABOUT HIS TRIP TO EUROPE.

A Visit to England for Rest and Pleasure—Probable Lectures—Free Trade and Home Rule—Satisfying Mrs. Beecher—Arrangements for the Departure Saturday Morning.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 18.—The Plymouth Church pastor sat in his study yesterday, alternately mopping the perspiration from his brow and perusing the contents of his mail bag. Mrs. Beecher bent over a piece of delicate needlework in the bow window. Upon the table in front, rested immense vases containing jacqueminot and other roses which are endowed with foreign names. The two had apparently been talking of their prospective trip abroad when the POST-DISPATCH correspondent was ushered into their presence.

"Now, what am I to do for you?" asked Mr. Beecher.

"The public want to know something about your proposed trip to the old country."

"Well, I know very little about it myself," replied Mr. Beecher. "That being the case, I scarcely see how I can inform them. All I know is that I expect to sail for England Saturday, aboard the Etruria."

"The object of your trip?"

"Rest and"——here Mr. Beecher hesitated. "What else, wife?"

"Well, I don't know that I can give any more information than you can."

"She could, but she won't," remarked Mr. Beecher joocosely. "The truth is that the power behind the throne has been begging me for years to take her to England. This has as much to do with my going as any one thing. Mrs. Beecher has been so persistent—and you know it is dangerous to refuse a woman's request—that I have decided it best to grant her request."

OBJECT OF THE TRIP.

"Is the only object of your visit rest?"

"Well, after my arrival in London I suppose I shall be in the hands of my friends and Maj. Pond. If they want to listen to a Beecher lecture, why I see no reason to refuse them."

"What is your programme?"

"I have none. Pond attends to that. I really do not know upon what subject I shall lecture. I have about forty from which to choose. What I shall finally select I cannot tell, you know."

"Will you speak on free trade?"

"Why, what's the use of carrying coals to Newcastle? I can't hope to give an Englishman points upon a subject with which he is as familiar as with his own individuality. No, I scarcely think I shall touch upon this topic."

"Home rule, perhaps?"

"There's another subject which it would be exceedingly presumptuous for me to attempt to discuss before an English audience. Should I, however, be asked to write a letter explaining my views as an American, I might do so. I go as a learner, not as an instructor. I have a strong desire to study this all-absorbing subject."

"Will you tell us something about it on your return?"

"May be. That is, if you want to listen to my poor conception of the political struggle of the day in Great Britain."

"You, of course, sympathize with Gladstone and Parnell?"

"Certainly; I am an advocate of local self-government. I believe Ireland should be provided with an opportunity to try it. Should she fail to show a proper appreciation of the privilege the remedy is at hand. But, understand me, I don't propose to mix in English politics while abroad, if I can help it. I want to make other observations."

"Do you recall your trip twenty-three years ago, Mr. Beecher?"

"I ought to, but let us not talk abolition now. We have realized it and what's the use of going into reminiscences? My memory is poor, too. I believe in looking forward, not backward."

"Will you visit other countries than England while abroad?"

PROBABLE VISIT TO IRELAND.

"I hardly think I shall. I have but about three months to stay. I shall devote the greater portion of my time to sight-seeing and satisfying the curiosity of Mrs. Beecher. I might step over into Iceland. As to that, however, I cannot as yet give you positive information. I hope to return invigorated, not only physically, but mentally."

Mr. Beecher at this, was compelled to cut short the interview, his attendance being required at a Holy Trinity Church funeral. The Plymouth pastor will not go aboard the Etruria when she leaves her pier at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning. Instead, the big steamer Columbia has been chartered to convey him to Sandy Hook. She will leave Jewell's Wharf at at 6:30 o'clock a. m. with several hundred friends on board. On arriving at the Hook Mr. Beecher will embark amid farewell greetings of his friends.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

East St. Louisans at the Mercy of Strange Thieves and Thugs—Recent Robberies.

The state of affairs prevailing in this city at present is such that peaceful residents are becoming very much alarmed. The number of robberies nightly is not diminishing to any great extent, and it cannot be denied that there are at present a number of hard-looking strangers in town whose purposes are most likely to profit by the absence of any protection to life or property. If the present state of affairs continues much longer the results are to be feared.

Last night about 9 o'clock a Frenchman named Vendeaux who had worked for Louis Recordon, a suburban farmer, but who had drawn his full pay, about $27, and quit yesterday morning, was attacked by two garroters on Caookia bridge. One of the robbers seized him by the throat and demanded his money, but instead of complying he showed fight and one of the highwaymen then struck him with a blunt instrument in the back of the head, felling him to the ground. They then took his money from him and, not wishing to leave him where he would block up the passageway, carried him to the east side of the bridge and let him roll down the embankment. They then fled. Vendeaux being almost senseless from the effect of the terrible blow he had received rolled into the water, but had sufficient strength left to save himself from drowning. He dragged himself up the steep incline and made his way to the police station, where he reported what had befallen him. His dripping wet clothes and the terrible wound in the back of his head left no doubt as to the truth of his story, but there being no police no efforts were made to hunt down his assailants.

The man who was knocked down and robbed in the yard of the Green Tree Hotel the night before last has been ascertained to be a young man named McGeon. He was robbed of his month's salary, which he had received that evening.

Early this morning a man came to the Relay Depot with some ugly cuts in his head, which he showed to several parties who happened to be around at the time. He said that he lived in the Fourth Ward, and while walking up the track between the Relay and Green Tree Hotel about 10 o'clock last night was assaulted and robbed by two men who sprang out from behind a box car in front of Hezel's mill.

St. Clair Lodge No. 277, Ancient Order of United Workmen, met last evening and elected the following officers: E. J. Eggman, Past Master Workman; Wm. Carey, Master Workman; Herman Haus, Foreman; Charles Haines, Overseer; Michael Gilligan, Recorder; Dan Sullivan, Financier; Wm. Genkins, Inside Watchman; John Smith, Outside Watchman; A. B. Dalton, Guide.

Barbara Ramboit made complaint before 'Squire Shea this morning that she had been brutally beaten by a man named John Feicht. A warrant was issued for Feicht's arrest. The assault occurred in the Fourth Ward.

Blockade on Fourth Street.

Tremendous crowd. Everything going fast. Time nearly up. Store crowded all the time. The cause of this great crowd is the sale of a large bankrupt stock of a wholesale clothing house at 605 North Fourth street, between Christy and Washington avenues, St. Louis. The entire stock is being sold at retail 47 per cent less than first cost. We mention a few of the extraordinary bargains they are offering, and advise our readers to call at once, as time is nearly up when the great sale must close: An elegant suit of men's clothes, $3.53, guaranteed worth $18 or money returned. This suit is latest style and very handsome. A splendid pair of men's pants, $1; made of superior quality cloth, and worth $4 or money returned. Extra fine quality men's suits, $5.99, made of some of the finest goods in the market and guaranteed worth $16. Extra fine blue cloth suits, fine all-wool, corkscrew, silk and satin-lined suits, and thousands of other kinds of extra fine suits we cannot mention here. Men's fine quality hats 99 cents, made of the finest material, latest style, and guaranteed worth $3. Extra quality umbrellas, 98 cents, worth $2.50, and thousands of other goods which must be closed out at a terrible slaughter, at 605 North Fourth street, between Christy avenue and Washington avenue, St. Louis. Remember, time is nearly up when this great sale must close. Store open till 9 at night.

THE WIFE'S ANSWER.

MRS. FRANK J. BOWMAN ENTERS HER CROSS-BILL THIS AFTERNOON.

Studied Neglect of Home and Family Alleged—Contempt and Dislike After Nineteen Years of Married Life—The Case Set for Trial Next Week—Settlement of Property.

The answer and cross-bill of Mrs. Frank J. Bowman to the petition for divorce filed by her husband was entered this afternoon in Judge Lubke's Court. It reads as follows:

Frank J. Bowman vs. Mary V. Bowman:

And now comes the defendant and for answer to the petition of plaintiff admits that she was married to the plaintiff and that she is now his wife, but she denies each and all of the other allegations of said petition. And for cause of action against the plaintiff, and by way of cross-bill in this cause, the defendant says that she and the plaintiff were lawfully married on the 25th of June, 1867. From that time to this she has at all times faithfully discharged her duties as the wife of the plaintiff, and as such has properly demeaned herself. That the plaintiff, for a long time unmindful of his duty and obligation to the defendant, has offered to her such indignities as have and do now render her condition intolerable. Among other things he has long since been indifferent to her and has subjected her to slights and petty annoyances. For at least four or five years past, he has indulged in and her pleasures. That he has been cross and irritable without cause or provocation, and, both by act and speech, has given expression to his anger towards her, both when they were alone and in the presence of others. For the last three years he has spent much of his time from home, and has spent his Sundays and evenings away from his family and from her, although in the city of St. Louis and has concealed from her his whereabouts, his motives and the causes of his absence. That for more than two years he has consented to the most ordinary and indifferent intercourse with the defendant and has wholly failed to cohabit with her. That he has been extremely peevish and irritable and cross and has not concealed his dislike for her in the presence of others, but has on divers and sundry occasions given expression to his hostile feeling for her in the presence and hearing of others. That he has repeatedly declared to defendant his indifference for his home and home-life, and persistently by his conduct shown his dislike for her. His conduct in these particulars has been persistent and continual for more than three years last past; that it has grown by degrees gradually worse, and has been displayed and declared in divers and sundry acts and expressions that he has for a great while been irreconcilable to his home, his surroundings, or to her, and on the 22d of May, 1886, he without cause and declared his intention of not returning, and has since resided at a public hotel in the city of St. Louis, separate and apart from the defendant and declared and published to the world his purpose to permanently live apart from her. Defendant further says that she has been a resident of the State of Missouri all her life and that she, the plaintiff, have resided in said State in the city of St. Louis for more than ten years last past; that her husband is possessed of large means and is able to pay her suitable alimony.

Wherefore the defendant prays to be divorced from the bonds of matrimony existing between her and the plaintiff, and for such alimony as to the court shall seem proper under all the circumstances of this case and for her costs herein.

LAUGHLIN & KERN.

With whom are Davis & Davis, attorneys for the defendant.

NO COLLUSION.

Mary V. Bowman being duly sworn on her oath says that she is the complainant in the annexed cross-bill; that the facts stated therein are true according to her best knowledge and belief and that the complaint by her made is not made out of levity or by collusion, fear or restraint between the plaintiff and defendant for the mere purpose of being separated from each other, but in sincerity and truth for the causes mentioned in her cross-bill.

MARY V. BOWMAN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 18th day of June, 1886. ALEX GARESCHE, JR., Notary Public.

Service of copy accepted.

FRANK J. BOWMAN.

DATE OF TRIAL.

The case will be set down for trial next Thursday, June 24. It is not probable that the husband will press his petition, and it is understood that a default will be suffered for want of reply to the cross-bill above. In that case the trial would proceed on Mrs. Bowman's cross-bill. The alimony question will be submitted to the Court. Mrs. Bowman, it is said, has consented to a settlement of the property on Grand avenue and Pine street upon her, which will yield an income of about $2,000 annually. The daughter, Miss Florence Bowman, will be of age in two months, and will reside with her mother. Mr. Bowman is staying at the Laclede Hotel.

WINTER WHEAT.

Excellent Prospects in Missouri—A Poor Outlook in Kansas.

TOLEDO, June 18.—C. A. King & Co., during the past three days have received 1,600 reports from grain dealers and millers, covering almost every important wheat county in the six principal winter wheat States. Prospects are very favorable, except in Kansas and Michigan. Missouri has excellent prospects, Illinois nearly as good, while Indiana and Ohio are almost as favorable. Michigan has a fair prospect, but the outlook in Kansas is poor. Yield and quality promise to be good. Michigan reports the present prospect about the same as July 1, when the Agricultural Bureau report was gathered. The other States all show a material improvement during the past two weeks, being greatest in Missouri and Illinois. Harvest is in full blast in Kansas and Missouri. Next week it will be general in most of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, but not in the northern sections until the last of June and in Michigan the first part of July. Harvest will average nearly two weeks earlier than last year. Nearly two-thirds of the reports say farmers will be disposed to sell freely immediately after threshing. Even Michigan reports that over half will sell. Many will be compelled to, owing to the crop failure of last year, while others say that farmers are disposed to accept the situation, as those who have sold early the past two seasons have done best.

NORTH ST. LOUIS.

A new high service engine for the Water-Works has been contracted for at a cost of $132,000.

Mrs. Samuel Gaty, 3408 North Ninth street, who has been seriously ill for two weeks past is able to be out again.

The wife and daughter of Dr. George W. Hall, 3515 N. Ninth, will go to West Point on a visit to their son, Cadet Hermann Hall.

The Neidringhaus and Laclede Rolling Mills will continue until July 15, thereby extending the time of the usual summer shut down for two weeks and more.

There was a largely attended lawn party given last night at Maguire place, Eleventh and Bremen avenue, for the benefit of the church which is soon to be built. The event was a success throughout.

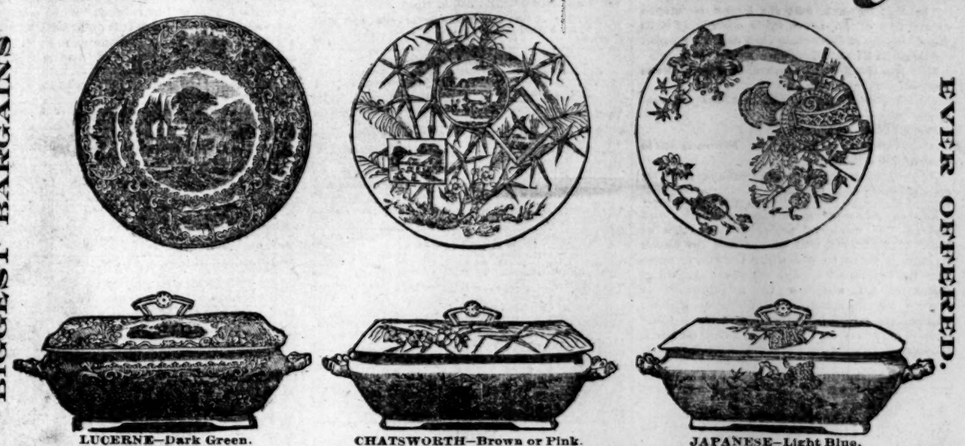

Yesterday afternoon a 3-year-old son of Wm. Homann, Hawthorne avenue, near Bellefontaine road, fell through a scuttle opening on the sidewalk and is so seriously injured about the head that his life is despaired of. The Buck's Stove and Range Company's works, second and Destrehan streets, will close down to-night for a brief time for necessary repairs. The manager said to a POST-DISPATCH reporter to-day that there would be no general shut-down this year, as there has been in summers past. This is good news for the 400 workmen.

Where Is Mathew King?

Information is wanted of Mathew King, 13 years of age, who left his home, 3008 Atlantic street, Friday and has not since been seen. He has blue eyes, is sickly-looking, and wore a white straw hat with black band, greenish-colored coat, gray vest and black jeans pants.

MOONLIGHT ON THE RIVER.

The First Excursion of the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the Training School.

The first river excursion of the season under the auspices of the Woman's Training School was given last night upon the Charles P. Chouteau by the Young Woman's Auxiliary Branch of the Training School. It proved to be a delightful affair and a financial success. The boat did not leave the wharf until a little after 6, so that the gentlemen were able to get off from business and enjoy a few hours' relaxation on the river. There were about 700 persons on board, the majority of them young people, and Mrs. Rainwater, ably assisted by Maj. Rainwater and the Rainwater Rifles, made the evening pass delightfully to every one; no difficult task for the votaries of Terpsichore and the skating rink, for the evening was cool enough to enjoy the exercise thoroughly. At 6:30 o'clock the dining-room was thrown open and a delightful supper, consisting of the rolled sandwiches for which the Training School is famous, tongue, salads, cold beef, ham, delicious coffee, cakes and cream, was bountifully served to the hungry guests by the ladies in charge, Mrs. Rainwater, Mrs. Dr. A. C. Robinson, Mrs. Hendell, Mrs. Gus Gamble, Mrs. Charles McEntyre, Mrs. Eve Grant, Miss Curran, Mrs. Gamble, Mrs. Lockwood, Miss Eva Johnson, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. B. C. These gentlemen were all decorated with blue satin badges bearing in gold letters the words "Rainwater Rifles," and were attached by a gold pin with the monogram "Y. W. A."

They will first take a drive in carriages through the suburbs, and will wind up at Budenstein's Grove, where they will give an out-door entertainment. There will be a band of music, singing and recitations.

THE RUMSEYS.

JUDGE THAYER TO-DAY REFUSES A DIVORCE TO THE HUSBAND.

The Married Life of a West End Young Couple Analyzed in an Elaborate Decision—Comments Upon the Temper of the Wife and the Exciting Cause—A Bench Sermon to Benedicts.

Judge Thayer to-day handed down his decision in the divorce case of W. C. Rumsey against Mamie Rumsey, as follows:

"The testimony in this case shows beyond question that Mrs. Rumsey has a quick, violent and ungovernable temper; that she has on various occasions, when overcome by anger, made use of most of the expressions, threats and epithets set forth in the petition of the husband; that she has in a few instances treated her husband with disrespect and considerable show of temper in public. On the strength of her admission it must be found that on at least three occasions Mrs. Rumsey threw various missiles at her husband, which, though not calculated to injure him seriously or excite much fear, nevertheless amounted to personal assaults. The testimony also shows that there were frequent periods of estrangement when both parties "sulked in their tents" and did not speak to each other or occupy the same room for several days in succession. The Court is of opinion, however, that the husband was quite as much inclined to silence, and was at such times as his wife, and it is most probable from the apparent disposition of the parties that the first advances with a view of re-establishing friendly relations were made by the wife. The charges that Mrs. Rumsey was an inefficient and slovenly housekeeper and that she was wanting in motherly attention to her child are not proven. Except on a few occasions, when the household was upset by causes for which Mrs. Rumsey was not wholly responsible, she appears to have managed her affairs with ordinary efficiency. The Court discredits the allegations that either party willfully neglected or cruelly treated the child. After each disturbance in the family, with the exception of the culminating difficulty in January, 1885, there appears to have been a reconciliation and mutual pledges of forgiveness, and upon the whole the quarrels between them do not appear to have been of such a character as to attract the attention or excite comment on the part of their nearest neighbors. Undoubtedly, the life they led at times made them both very miserable. The Court has no doubt that Mrs. Rumsey's state of health, for a considerable period, was such as to increase in a marked degree, a temper that was naturally hasty and ungovernable. That, however, did not render her irresponsible for her actions. Her condition was such as to demand very considerate treatment and unusual forbearance on the part of the husband. If he failed to pay proper regard to the reasonable desires of his wife; if his treatment of her at times was cold, ungenerous, captious and irritating; if his demeanor sometimes betrayed want of confidence and unworthy suspicions, and if he was himself of many of her outburst of temper and consequent periods of estrangement, he is not in the eye of the law an innocent party. Some of the difficulties were occasioned by the conduct of the husband, which was inconsiderate, very irritating and otherwise censurable. In many instances the Court believes that the magnitude of the original trouble was increased by such conduct of the husband, and his actions at least were not in any degree conciliatory. As most of their quarrels and estrangements grew out of disagreements that were at first trifling and ought not to have occasioned more than a momentary unpleasantness if there had been any forbearance on either side, it is fair to presume that Mrs. Rumsey was not always to blame or exclusively to blame. She has given such a circumstantial and probable account of some of their most important difficulties as to convince the Court of the substantial accuaracy of her narrative as to those troubles. Under the circumstances the Court cannot attach much value to the admissions of Mr. Rumsey, made after the separation, had taken place, to the effect that she was to blame. These admissions were made to her husband's friends when she was soliciting their aid to bring about a reconciliation. It was natural that she should assume a generous share of the blame.

THE DECREE REFUSED.

"After a careful consideration of the testimony, the Court concludes that Mr. Rumsey is not so far blameless as to constitute him an innocent and injured party, and a decree of divorce is refused him. If he elects to enter a non-suit he will have leave to do so within three days; otherwise the Court will order the case to be dismissed. As addition compensation to Mrs. Rumsey's counsel the Court makes an allowance of $75 and directs its payment in ten days."

Counsel were unable to say to-day what steps would be taken by Mr. Rumsey. He has hree days in which to elect.

SOLITARY AND ALONE.

Miss Grace Brewer (Colored) the Only Graduate of the Vincennes High School.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

VINCENNES, Ind., June 18.—The public schools close to-day and Miss Grace Brewer will graduate solitary and alone, her white sisters having deserted the '86 class. The usual exercises were held this forenoon. Miss Brewer's essay is entitled "The Difficulties of Educating the Colored Youth; Their Advantages and Disadvantages." Opinion appears to be equally divided as to the white girls leaving school. The parents of the girls sustain their action, partly through force. Politically the girls are five Republicans and three Democrats if they follow the teachings of their fathers. Miss Brewer has become famous, as congratulatory letters are pouring in upon her from all parts of the country and not infrequently a telegram from some Suffragist Association, that of Kokomo, Ind., sending her a beautiful silk badge with the inscription: "Liberty, Equality, Justice." Miss Brewer is of handsome features and form, graceful and accomplished, and in the excitement she has been unassuming and modest, the center of attraction. People run wild to see her and High School hall will be crowded this afternoon to see the colored girl graduate.

THE MAXWELL CASE.

State Auditor Walker Says He Will Pay Only the Twelve.

The following letter was received by Mayor Francis to-day in reply to a letter sent by him to State Auditor Walker in regard to the payment of the jurers in the Maxwell case:

Hon. D. R. Francis, St. Louis, Mo.:

DEAR SIR—Replying to your letter of the 15th inst., permit me to say that the State will pay only the cost of the twelve men who tried the cause. Very respectfully,

JOHN WALKER, State Auditor.

Jefferson City, June 17, 1886.

It will be seen by this that only the twelve men who tried the case will be paid by the State.

The application of Messrs. Martin & Fauntleroy for leave to file a supplementary motion for a new trial in the Maxwell case was taken under advisement by Judge Van Wagoner. The supplementary motion is in regard to Juror Sears having expressed an opinion in the case previous to the trial. Mr. Fauntleroy argued the matter, and Judge Van Wagoner reserved his decision in order to give Mr. Fauntleroy time to produce authorities in support of his claims.

THE THOMPSON TRAGEDY.

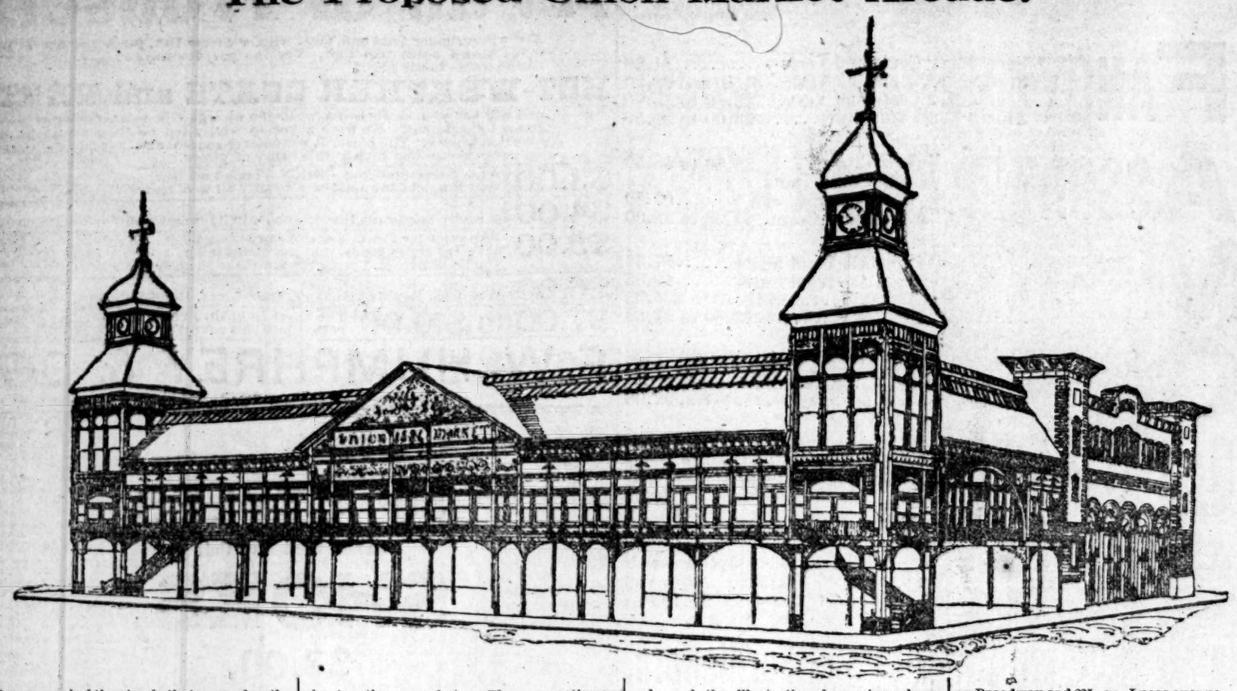

Mrs. Winfield B. Thompson, the Murdered Bride, Buried at the Evergreen.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Winfield B. Thompson, the young bride who was shot and killed by her husband in the Sturtevant House on Tuesday, took place to-day from her parents' residence in this city. It was largely attended by friends and the street was filled with people. The Rev. Dr. Elder conducted the services. The interment was in the Cemetery of the Evergreens.

Thayer Was Too Confiding.

Frank M. Thayer of Cairo, Ill., was walking along the street last evening with Charles Kellar, an acquaintance, in some neighborhood unknown to Thayer, when they stopped in front of a disreputable house. Thayer entered, giving his pocket-book containing about $85 to Kellar to hold, telling him he would be out in about twenty minutes. When he returned both pocket-book and friend were missing.

The Proposed Union Market Arcade.

The removal of the stands that encumber the sidewalks about Union Market and the unsightly sheds that hide the buildings has been desired by the business men in the dry goods section on Broadway for some time. They secured the introduction of a bill in the Municipal Assembly providing for the erection of an arcade to join the market building on the south side, under which all the stands which are now on the pavements can be accomodated. The present position of the stands and the existence of the sheds, these merchants have claimed, have served to keep a large portion of the trade in their line south of Washington avenue, as persons living in the southern part of the city did not like to push through the crowds and cabbage scents gathered about the market. These gentlemen once united in the opinion that it would be for the best interests of the city to demand the removal of the market to some section of city where it would not be an impediment to business. They, however, changed that opinion on the suggestion of Comptroller Campbell for the erection of an arcade. Eighty-five feet of the block on which the market is situated is occupied by sheds. An arcade occupying that space would accommodate all the stalls now there and those scattered about the sidewalk, because the space could be more economically utilized. These merchants, of whom Messrs. Joseph Specht, Dan Nugent and Dugald Crawford were most prominent, had plans made for the arcade, and the illustration here given shows the Broadway and Lucas avenue elevations of the proposed structure, with the Broadway front of the present market.

The bill introduced into the Council was withdrawn by the Committee on Markets by consent, because the Comptroller could not attach his certificate that the money was on hand with which to build the arcade, as he is required by law to do. The bill was withdrawn to await the passage of the appropriation bill, in which $20,000 is set apart for this improvement. When the appropriation bill is disposed of the arcade bill will be again introduced and passed.

The building proposed will have 85 feet on Broadway and 235 on Lucas avenue. The entrances shown in the illustration will be closed in winter by iron shutters. The interior will be divided into stalls, each containing 100 square feet, and passage-ways will allow free passage between stalls. Two main passages will cross the interior diagonally, and at their intersection a fountain will be placed. The floor will be of stone flagging. A space twenty feet wide all around the arcade on the second floor will be used for restaurants and offices. Materials used in the construction will be iron, galvanized iron and glass. An immense skylight will cover the main portion of the stall apartment. The architects' estimates put the cost at nearly $35,000.

BICYCLE BUDGET.

Prince Beats Neilson—The M. A. A. C. and Whittaker—Notes.

The Ramblers next run is to St. Charles and return, forty miles. The famous fourteen being in such good trim after their DeSoto ride, will be on hand.

In the ten-mile professional championship race at Lynn, Mass., John S. Prince beat Neilson again, with Woodside third. Time, Prince, 30:08 1-5; Neilson, 30:08 2-5.

Percy Stone is expected home to-day from Little Rock, Ark., where he competed Wednesday in a bicycle tournament which was largely attended. He ran a five-mile race against five Arkansas riders, each one riding a mile of the distance. Percy kept up his gait from the start and won easily in 16:54½.

At a meeting of the American Cyclists' Union at Boston, Monday, the following racing rules were adopted: An amateur wheelman is any person who has never, either in public or in private, raced for a stake or exhibited for a public or for a private stake or for a purse or for gate money, and who has never competed under a false name, and who has never backed or has allowed himself to be backed either in a public or a private race. A professional is a man who at any time has violated his standing as given above.

Rich, the New York amateur, having entered the New Haven races which were run under A. C. U. rules, and won the Pope cup, it was not unlikely that he will find himself in hot water as the Racing Board of the L. A. W. refuses to recognize mixed races like those of the A. C. U. It was rumored in Boston that owing to the opposition of the Racing Board which had an injurious effect upon the entries and helped make the managers lose money the latter will sue Abbot Basseth, a possibility that he laughs at.

The Executive Committee of the American Cyclists' Union, Messrs. D. A. P. Cooke, Arthur Young and E. R. Stettinius, have issued the following circular to wheelmen: "The regular monthly meeting of the Cyclists' Social Union will be held at Delmonico's Saturday evening, June 19, at 7 o'clock, one hour before the meeting of the Missouri Division L. A. W. A full attendance of wheelmen, whether members of the association or not, is desired and urged. Those intending to be present will please advise one of the committee, if possible, before Saturday morning."

Bassett, chairman of the Racing Board, in his correspondence with Whittaker, censured him for racing with Hart, Morris and Oellien and endangering their standing. The M. A. A. C. said that the expulsion of Whittaker by the L. A. W. could have no effect on their treatment of Whittaker, but all the same the reason the M. A. A. C gave for not sending Whittaker to Pullman was that he had been professionalized by the League of American Wheelmen. If the same view of the case had been taken before the recent contests at Union Park, there would be no danger of any amateur cyclist getting into trouble.

Ramsey's Case.

The Cincinnati Base Ball Club arrived in the city this morning and registered at the Lindell Hotel. Manager O. P. Caylor is here with the club. To a POST-DISPATCH reporter Mr. Caylor said that the condition of the club was deplorable in the extreme. Carpenter, Keenan and Reilly are very sore, Keenan being totally unable to play. In reference to the continued attacks on the Reds made every day by the Cincinnati Enquirer, Mr. Caylor said they were due entirely to personal feeling, and that the people in Cincinnati understood it that way and paid no attention to such attacks whatever.

Manager Caylor takes a different view from the local one of the discipline applied to Latham and Bushong by the association and believes that it is correct. The disgraceful conduct of Ramsey in Louisville recently, he says, has already been officially called to the attention of the association and the young pitcher will no doubt hear from the Board of Directors and the president before long. Mr. Caylor said he made the rule covering this point himself.

Ball Games Yesterday.

At Chicago—Chicagos, 11; Maroons, 3. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 4; Louisville, 3. At Detroit—Detroit, 11; Kansas City, 4. At Boston—Philadelphia, 3; Boston, 2.

Gossip of the Game.

The Laurels have organized for the season with a strong team.

Keenan's complaint will incapacitate him for a month at least. He has a sore leg.

The Croakers will go to Lebanon on Sunday to play the local club of that town.

The Browns play their last game of the present Cincinnati series on Sunday and then go home with the Reds, returning on June 27.

Long John Reilly complains that he finds a considerable difficulty in running bases as cleverly as he did when in his old time form.

Stagg, the Yale pitcher, has struck out eighty-two men in eight games. Nichols of Harvard has struck out forty-eight in five games.

The Dougherty Brothers' Club will go to Collinsville Sunday and play the crack team of that place. Their battery will be Finnegan and Shelley.

Manager Smelz of the Maroons advises the release of Sweeney and Bauer, the two pitchers whom he sent home. Mr. Lucas has as yet not decided the matter.

Mullane does not accompany his club this trip and will, therefore, not pitch in St. Louis. Mr. Lucas wanted $400 to request a withdrawal of the injunction, and the Cincinnati management thought the price too high.

The pitchers are batting very hard this year. Whitney, Sweeney, Buffington, Hecker, Foutz, Caruthers, Matthews, Henderson, Terry, Morris, Flynn, Baldwin, and Ferguson all rank among the first batteries in the country.

Joe Murphy is a great favorite with the Cincinnati club. The management has offered him every inducement to sign with them, but he still holds out in refusing. Joe says, though, that if he ever joins a professional club it will be the Cincinnati Reds.

Sporting Notes.

The fishing at Breeze Lake is good. Some handsome strings are being brought in from the lake every day.

Wm. Muldoon and Tom Cannon wrestled last night at Cincinnati, Graeco-Roman style, for $300. The match was declared a draw.

A regatta with $1,500 in purses offered, singles and doubles, will be given at Lake Maxinkuckee, near Logansport, Ind., July 26.

Campbell Gets Thar.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 18.—Hon. W. P. Campbell of Woodruff County, Ark., ex-State Land Commissioner, was yesterday appointed Clerk of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Luke E. Barber. The office is an important one, which Campbell will fill with ability. He has been considered a candidate for State Senator of his district, but his appointment puts an end to that.

The first gymnastic exhibition given by the Young Men's Christian Association occurred last evening and was a pronounced success. After the regular programme the large audience was invited to examine the new building.

THE CHURCHES.

GLEANINGS IN THE DIFFERENT SPIRITUAL FIELDS.

Dr. Foy's Resignation—The Baptist Tabernacle—The Ties That Bind Dr. Holland—A Special Meeting of the Presbytery—Notes and Personals.

The Catholic bishops concluded their business yesterday evening and adjourned sine die. The result of their deliberations will not, of course, be known until promulgated by the Pope, but it is well understood, as announced in the POST-DISPATCH, that the increase of sees in Kansas and Nebraska occupied their attention. It is reported that they decided on giving St. Joseph a separate bishop, but opposed the transforming of the Leavenworth see into a separate province. With these new bishoprics established the names of the bishops were considered, and it is not unlikely that when the list reaches Rome it will be found to contain some St. Louis names.

DR. FOY'S RESIGNATION.

From Capt. Rollins and daughter, members of the Episcopal Church at Columbia, Mo., who are in the city, it is learned that the resignation of Rev. J. H. Foy, D. D., LL. D., was received with great regret by the Columbia church. He had taken charge of the parish only a few weeks ago, but had made such a successful beginning that the Episcopalians of Columbia were looking forward to an era of greater prosperity than they had enjoyed for some time. But Dr. Foy found that the increasing feebleness of his wife's mother prevented the removal of his family to Columbia, and he could not bring himself to accept a practical separation from home and family. For this reason he presented his resignation, which was received by the vestry with resolutions of regret coupled with the most flattering testimonials to his pastoral efficiency.

Mrs. R. J. Peterson will fill the pulpit of the Union Congregational Church, Third and Ashley streets, Sunday evening.

A special meeting of the St. Louis Presbytery has been called for June 30 to dismiss Rev. H. S. Williams to Chicago.

REV. H. S. WILLIAMS' FAREWELL.

Rev. H. Spencer Williams, the much beloved pastor of the North Presbyterian Church, has accepted the call to Englewood, near Chicago. The announcement of this call, first published in the POST-DISPATCH, caused much sorrow in the North Church, and their picnic the day following was more of a funeral than a picnic. His last Communion Service at his old church will be held Sunday morning, the preparatory lecture for which he will give to-night at 8 o'clock. Sunday evening, also, Mr. Williams will preach. A week from Sunday will be his last Sabbath at the North Church as he expects to commence work in his new field the first Sunday in July.

THE BAPTIST TABERNACLE.

Tuesday night next, the special committee of three, Revs. Boyd, Greene and Harris, appointed by the Ministerial Association last Monday, have decided to recognize and organize the Baptist Church at Sixth and Spruce streets and ordain H. A. Slaughter as pastor at the same time. The prospects of the new church are good. Mr. Slaughter states there have been 150 conversions in the Fifth Street Mission. There was an average of one conversion every Sunday. He believes that the secret of success is individual labor. Fifty of the select citizens are in that mission. He believes that within two years there will be a church of 500 members. It is the object of those who have this mission in charge to make it partly self-sustaining from the very beginning, in order to teach the people the Christian duty of giving.

St. Joseph (Mo.) Southern Methodists want Bishop Hendrix to reside there.

To-night services at B'nai El Temple will be conducted by children of the first class.

Father Phillips Carroll has been transferred from the Annunciation Parish to New Madrid.

The Baptists are very jubilant over the successful opening of the Sixth Street Tabernacle.

Chancellor Van der Sanden of the Catholic arch-diocese, will sail in a few days for Europe.

It transpires that Father Talton, the colored Catholic priest, studying in Rome, is not dead.

Rev. J. G. Hibben will preach Sunday morning and evening at the Second Presbyterian Church.

Presiding Elder Corrington of the M. E. Church will be at Fredericktown to-morrow and Sunday.

Sunday week at 10:30, the new Catholic church at Clayton will be dedicated by Vicar-General Brady.

Rev. W. W. Silvester, assistant at Christ Episcopal Church, has been elected a member of the American Institute of Civics, Boston.

The second annual steamboat excursion of All Saints Episcopal Church will take place Monday, June 21, on the steamer Charles P. Chouteau.

Brother Martin, a Trappist brother from the Monastery of Marryhill, in South Africa, is now collecting in this city with permission of the Archbishop.

Miss Ellen Le Bert has returned from organizing sodalities at interior points. She accomplished her mission successfully at Rolla, St. James and Cuba.

One of the most peculiar advertisements appearing for some time is the one in the Central Baptist for a president for McCune College at New London, Mo.

In return for the kindness shown to her husband at St. Luke's after the fatal runaway accident a year ago, the late Mrs. Pozzoni left $1,000 to the hospital and $500 to the lady who nursed Mr. Pozzoni.

The services Sunday at the District Conference of the St. Louis District M. E. Church, South, which opened at Bonne Terre, Mo., yesterday, will be conducted by Rev. Dr. John D. Vincil of St. Louis.

A peculiar effect of lukewarmness is thus described in this week's St. Louis Christian Advocate, Southern Methodist organ: "Lukewarmness prevalent in the church is an abomination to God; it nauseates him."

Rev. Dr. Marquis of the St. Louis Presbytery, as moderator of the late General Assembly, caused a sensation among the Presbyterians by preaching a powerful sermon in favor of the pre-millenarian theory.

Rev. Dr. Boyd denies that any underhand attempt was made to dispossess anybody of the Tabernacle property at Sixth and Spruce streets. He says the first quarter had been sued out for rent before he took it.

Father Wm. Froeber of St. Mary's Church, will also go abroad. Last year the latter went to Rome in connection with the coadjutorship, and now they say he is going over to see about the limits of the new diocese at Belleville.

Nearly all the churches have dropped Sunday night services for the summer. When the Evangelical Alliance adjourns till fall, which it will probably do at the next meeting, the summer hiatus will be as nearly complete as it ever gets.

Dr. Fry evidently considered the supply of passes to the races sent to him as a reflection on his piety, for this week in the Central Christian Advocate, Methodist organ, he doesn't mince matters in denouncing the races as degrading.

The older church members make much of a lament over the death at Boonville, Mo., of Rev. Dr. W. M. Rush, a supernumerary of the Southern Methodist Church. Dr. Rush had been stationed in Missouri since 1841, and in 1863-4 served in St. Louis.

The First Presbyterian has vindicated her claim as the mother church of the denomination in this city, by being the first to respond to the call of the Presbyterian Union, having sent to the treasurer the amount of two collections for city mission work.

Father Brinckhoff of Holy Trinity (Catholic) received such a dangerous overheating the other day that his congregation have given him a purse and a leave of absence, beginning July 1, for a trip to Europe. This will be his first vacation in thirteen years.

Sunday is Trinity Sunday. In the Episcopal calendar Wednesday, to-day and to-morrow are ember days of fasting. Next Thursday is the feast of Corpus Christi, a holiday of obligation except in St. Louis and some other dioceses. Friday next is St. John the Baptist's.

It is said that when the Jesuit Fathers invited Archbishop Kenrick to go to the Novitiate the other day, one of them said: "If your Grace were twenty-five years younger we would invite you to stay." Quick as a flash the Archbishop replied: "Were I twenty-five years older I might accept such an invitation."

Memorial windows in honor of the late Bishop Robertson and the late Sister Louisa, to be placed in the chapel of St. Luke's hospital are already the object of some quiet giving. Ladies of the Church of the Holy Communion have already placed a white marble slab in the Chamber of Peace in memory of the dead sister.

To-morrow evening Archbishop Feehan of Chicago will arrive and remain in St. Louis until Sunday noon, when he will be escorted with much ceremony to East St. Louis, where he will administer confirmation at St. Patrick's and St. Henry's Churches. Many of the clergy of St. Louis have been invited to dine with him at 6 o'clock Sunday.

Sam Jones having said recently "If anybody tells you nothing is baptism but immersion, he lies." He is catching it from the Baptist press all over the country to such an extent that he has made a half apology. The Central Baptist intimates this week that he would do better to make a complete recantation. This statement of Mr. Jones promises to get him into what he calls "a heap o' trouble." A Baptist away down in Texas writes to his St. Louis organ asking the Baptists how they can encourage a man who will make such a statement.

Rev. Walter C. Douglass, who has been elected Secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. organization, has recently been engaged in efforts to raise the means for paying off the debt of the St. Louis Association, and has been able to reduce it from $9,000 to $3,800. He is also laboring in the interest of the conference to be held by D. L. Moody at Northfield, Mass., this summer, beginning August 4, to which the representatives of the Y. M. C. A. in about 400 colleges are to be provided with entertainment free of charge.

In closing their resolutions on the resignation of Rev. Dr. H. A. Stimson, the new pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, this city, the committee of the Church at Worcester, Mass., closed as follows, in a manner that ought to give a hint to any emissaries of Satan in St. Louis, if there are any here, as to the kind of a man they will have to deal with: "Our fervent prayers for God's blessing accompany him to his new field, where the conflict is so intense, and from which Dr. Stimson, armed and carrying a bow turns not back in the day of battle."

Rev. John W. Davis is indefatigably working to restore the Episcopal Church at Odessa that was recently wrecked by wind. At the diocesan convention he raised $120 among the delegates and was received so kindly that he does not doubt a special offertory for his purposes will be the outgrowth in some St. Louis church of this cordial encouragement. Of the whole amount needed, some $300, $300 of the debt had been indirectly pledged by the late Bishop Robertson, and a particular effort will be made to avoid any failing back upon that promise.

The convention of Young People's Unions will be held in the Presbyterian church at Clinton, Mo., on the 29th and 30th. Among those who will take part will be Rev. W. H. Claggett, Mr. O. J. Gary, the Evangelist, Mr. Paul E. Page, and Mr. Chess Birch, of St. Louis. The peculiar fitness of a name for a topic appears in the announcement on the programme that the subject of "How to Kill a Union," will be discussed by S. A. Mourning. But the essay promises to be more lively than grave. Mr. Gary, who is as well known among the Christian workers in St. Louis, will open the discussion on "Associate Union and its Benefits."

The managers of the camp meeting at Camp Marvin always arrange to get all the moonlight possible, and this year will be no exception. They have selected August 5—12 as the date, which is the first quarter and the full moon, and will secure a good flood of the sentimental illuminating agent. They have, however, got very near one of Rev. Uri R. Hicks' big storms which his weather charts fixes for from August 10 to the 15th. As already announced in the POST-DISPATCH, Bishop Hendrix, the new bishop of Fayette, Mo., will assist the local clergy in conducting the services. Presiding Elder T. H. Pinney, D. D., will have charge of the meeting.

Now that the conference and assembly news has been fully and well put before their readers, the religious papers of the city are turning again to local affairs. This week the Central Baptist and the St. Louis Evangelist pour broadsides into the ballet of the American Opera Company. The former says that the professed Christians who attended it "are casting their influence in favor of social degradation, and in their children may reap the bitter fruit they have sown." The Evangelist insists that the ballet should not be taken as representing the standard of taste in the higher circles of society, "and the caustic criticisms by some of the prominent ladies who are interested in art culture, should be interpreted as a protest against the repetition of such immodesty."

When even the most sanguine advocates of Dr. Holland come to think of the inducements St. George's will have to offer to get him back to St. Louis they almost despair. His present church in New Orleans is one of the largest in the United States, the communicants numbering 1,200. It is rich, too, and last year the income of the church from pew rents, etc., was over $29,000. He possesses a commodious and beautifully furnished rectory, free of all rent, and is the object of other valuable favors. He is idolized by his people there as much as he was here, and is altogether bound by ties he will find it hard to break. St. George's has only 300 or 400 communicants, but in the past two years Dr. Fulton, its resigned pastor, has given it a national reputation through the celebrated "St. George's Lenten Lecture Series" of 1885, and the Protestant ministers' retreat held last spring. St. George's has also enjoyed the distinction of having in Dr. Fulton the leading canonical authority of America, and one whose information was eagerly sought and utilized in the national councils of the church.

THINK OF THIS.

The greatest bargains ever offered in St. Louis in men's summer neckwear will be opened at T. B. Boyd & Co.'s, 309 North Fourth, to-morrow morning. They are all new, and are made from very choice summer silks.

THE FURNITURE-WORKERS.

Bosses and Journeymen in Consultation To-Day.

The chances are bright for an early adjustment of the furniture-workers' strike. It is probable that some satisfactory end will be rendered by to-night. Representatives of the various furniture manufacturing establishments and the Executive Committee of Furniture-Workers' Union No. 12 are in secret conference to-day at Social Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Monroe streets. Both sides are evidently anxious for a close of the long struggle, and for this reason it is thought that it will be made on a compromise basis of probably ten hours' pay for nine hours' work, or a new scale of prices.

The union men out still number 700, not one having left the strikers' ranks. Each receives regularly his $5 per week, and up to this time over $5,000 has been disbursed in this way. The strike reached its third week yesterday, the longest ever known in the history of the St. Louis furniture trade.

School for Old Folks.

The second annual session of the Missouri School of Science and Pedagogues will be held at Sweet Springs, Mo., from June 25 to July 17. The object of the meeting is to afford progressive men and women teachers an opportunity to study during the summer. An interesting course of lectures has been provided.

PROSPECTS OF A LYNCHING.

Acquitted of a Serious Charge—Cooke Goes to Prison—Texas Topics.

SAN ANTONIO, June 18.—Henry Carlos and Daniel McCarty, farmers at Hall's Point, had a quarrel, which resulted in Carlos shooting and killing McCarty without a warning. There is a threat of lynching. Carlos is in jail. Jose Enriquez, who was charged with a criminal assault upon his 10-year-old daughter, was tried and promptly acquitted last evening. Thos. Harrison, the young attorney, recently married, who was indicted for forgery and swindling, has been surrendered by his bondsmen. William Holmes, a colored mail agent, has been arrested on suspicion for robbing packages containing money. The Court of Appeals affirmed the sentence in the case of Cliff Cooke who was convicted for killing James Russell at a house of ill repute kept by Lilly Gibson, formerly of St. Louis. Cooke goes up for twenty-five years. The woman is in jail awaiting trial. Two fatal cases of sunstroke have already been reported here. The thermometer stood at 104 deg. in the shade yesterday.

Stofer of Lorena was shocked by a stroke of lightning yesterday. He cannot recover.

NOVEL READING IN BED.

A Young Girl Terribly Burned on Washington Avenue Last Night.

Ida Halloff, aged 17, a domestic at Dr. E. S. Lemoine's residence on Seventeenth and Washington avenue, met with an awful accident last night through her fondness for reading novels. She had become so interested in a book which she was reading that when she went to bed in her room on the second floor, she concluded to place a candle on a chair by the bed and read until she fell asleep. She read a number of pages when her eyes closed and the book fell from her hands. She dropped the book so close to the candle that when it burned down the pages of the book caught fire and the flames were communicated to the bed clothes. When the poor girl awoke her night clothes were on fire, and in her terror, thinking the house was on fire and that there was no way for her to escape, she ran to the window and threw herself out. Mr. Edward White was passing at the time, and called upon her not to jump, but she did not heed. He ran into the yard where she had fallen, and with his hands succeeded in extinguishing the blaze from her clothing. She was then carried up-stairs, but afterward sent to the City Hospital, where it was found that her injuries and burns were so severe as to make her recovery doubtful. Mr. White had his hands badly burned in trying to smother the flames which burned the girl's clothing.

LOCAL NEWS.

At the meeting of the Southern Historical Society last evening Hunt P. Wilson read an interesting paper on the second battle of Corinth, fought on October 3 and 4, 1862. Col. Musser delivered an eulogy on the late Col. S. D. Jackman.

Mary Collins and a woman named Reardon had a fight last evening in front of 906 Poplar street. The latter smashed a soup plate on the former's head. Mary was taken to the Dispensary, and both were then locked up at the Four Courts.

Ed Althage, aged 12 years, threw a lighted cigarette into the bung hole of an empty whisky barrel in front of Joseph James' store, 1344 South Broadway, last evening, and the barrel exploded. The boy had three of his fingers badly burnt.

All About a Small Boy.

Yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock a small boy pulled the door bell of Wm. B. Russell's residence, 2607½ Washington avenue, and Russell, seeing the boy scampering away, pursued him and caught him in front of the Pickwick Theater. He was proceeding to thrash him severely when Chas. B. Smythe, an attorney, jumped off a Washington avenue car and used his umbrella with telling effect on the boy-beater's head. Both Mr. Smythe and Russell were arrested, but furnished bond and were released.

Dr. Dean Resigns.

Dr. W. V. Dean, who has held the position of Superintendent of the City Hospital for the past ten years, has concluded to resign and has so notified the Mayor. Dr. Dean would have resigned about a year ago, but as charges were brought against him and an investigating committee appointed by the House of Delegates, he determined not to leave the office until he had cleared himself of the charges brought against him. The investigating committee fully exonerated him.

A FINANCIER'S ROMANCE.

A. B. Stockwell Sells His Stock Exchange Seat for $27,000.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 18.—A. B. Stockwell, who for many years has been one of the notable men of Wall street, sold his seat in the Stock Exchange yesterday for $27,000. Mr. Stockwell came to Wall street with lots of money, and by lucky speculations increased his fortune until he was one of the magnates of the stock market, ruling the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and other big corporations. He had dash and pluck. He took big risks. He was a man of new enterprises and many a project gained a strong foothold and flourished through his influence, and many men now financially strong, owed their first start to his friendly offices. But one day there was a collapse; cliques combined against him, and the old Wall street story was told once more—a man of consequence was pushed to the wall. Bad luck followed bad luck. No fortune, but ill fortune came to him. In the end he was penniless. He has fought through adverse fortunes, but though there are friends who predict happier things as sure to come one of these days, Mr. Stockwell has no longer power or influence in the street. He himself tells with great glee the story how, when he was at the height of his prosperity, everybody bowed down and saluted him as "Commodore" Stockwell, a title that they cut down to captain when he first began to go with an ebbing tide, while, when it became known that he was close to bankruptcy, the popular salutation was plain, unadorned "Hello, Stockwell," which, before long gave away to the more expressive epithet of "that red-headed son of a gun from Cleveland." With the $27,000 derived from the sale of the Stock Exchange seat, it is said that Mr. Stockwell will wipe out personal debts and use what remains as the basis for plans upon which to try once more a test of fortune. He is still the same cheery, good-natured man that he was in the days of his best fortune.

I HAVE been afflicted with rheumatism for years. Am taking Tongaline. Can recommend it to every one suffering from rheumatism. GEORGE W. OAKLEY, St. Joseph, Mo.

JOCK AND THE CLOCK.

Gifts from Antwerp for President and Mrs. Cleveland.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 18.—While the present mistress of the White House was being entertained at the residence of Mr. Von der Becke, the Red Star Agent in Antwerp, just before her departure for home, she saw a dog of the French poodle description which took her fancy. Yesterday this dog arrived here on the Red Star steamship Westernland as a gift from Mr. Von der Becke to Mrs. Cleveland. Along with the poodle came a large box, addressed to President Cleveland. The box contained a large, old-fashioned clock, which is a gift to the President from John H. Stewart, United States Consul at Antwerp. Mr. Stewart is an antiquarian as well as a Consul, and he has, from time to time, shipped to friends here old-fashioned articles of various descriptions which he had found in Antwerp. The clock which has been sent to President Cleveland has, like most of the old-fashioned Belgian clocks, a fancy design for a pendulum. The dog was known on board the Westernland as Jock. He may have had another name before he left Belgium and he may have still another name when he becomes an inmate of the White House, but during the voyage he was always ready to go to the butcher when latter called out "Jock." His friendship for the butcher was at times quite touching. Jock jumps through hands and performs various other feats of canine skill. He is something less than three feet long. His black woolly hair has been shaved about the body, but has been left about the head. On his legs are little tufts resembling muffs and his tail has not yet been shorn. The animal looks up intelligently whenever he can get his eyes out from under his bangs. Jock chased flies about the lower deck of the Westernland yesterday and seemed all unconscious of the fact that he is destined to own the White House on and after to-morrow. Mrs. Cleveland had not been informed that her old acquaintance was coming. The dog and the clock will probably both proceed to Washington to-day.

THE ANARCHISTS' VICTIMS.

Officers Wounded at the Haymarket Riot Slowly Recovering.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Only eighteen of the sixty-seven police officers wounded at the Haymarket riot have returned to duty. The death of Nels Hansen at the hospital this week was the seventh death, instead of the eighth, as has been generally published. Sixteen are still unable to leave their beds, and forty-two in all have not yet reported for duty. The most serious cases are those of Officers Jacob Hansen, Kiedzic, Timothy Sullivan and Shannon. These men are not out of danger yet, and their cases may terminate fatally. It has been a subject of much remark that the wounds have been exceedingly slow in healing, and it is generally believed that those who were struck by the shell were more or less poisoned. Even those who received slight injuries and have now returned to duty, carry bandaged hands or limbs, or some other memento of the occasion which clings persistently to them. This is particularly the case with Officer Frank Murphy, who received a very slight wound in the hand from a piece of the shell. It has never healed, and yesterday he went to the hospital to receive treatment, as serious fears are entertained that blood poisoning will even yet set in.

THE "BOODLE" ALDERMEN.

Big Bribes Offered Ex-Alderman Waite to Flee the Country.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The WORLD says: "The latest rumor regarding the indicted 'boodle' Aldermen and their efforts to prevent any more of their number from following convict Jaehn to Sing Sing, is that they have offered a large sum of money to ex-Alderman Charles B. Waite as an inducement to flee from this country and remain away until the public excitement regarding the bribe-takers and givers somewhat subsides. It is said that this plan of action was agreed upon by the "boodle" board at a recent meeting. The scheme, so goes the report, is to give Waite $10,000 in cash and pay his expenses to some far-off land, Russia or China, and to send him monthly $200 for living expenses.

Starving to Death.

JACKSON, Mich., June 18.—Mrs. Elizabeth Reed of this city, affected with internal cancer, with an exception of two spoonfulls of port wine each day, has taken no nourishment in ninty-one days. She has lost some flesh, but at the last visit of her physician appeared brighter than eight weeks ago. There are no hopes of her recovery.

Fatally Stung.

MUNCIE, Ind., June 18.—Ben Zepner, one of the wealthiest farmers in the county, was stung twice while working with bees yesterday, and in half an hour died from the effects of the poison in great agony.

ELECTION BOODLE.

THE POLITICAL CONFIDENCE GAME PLAYED UPON JAY GOULD.

The Railway Magnate Gives $50,000 to John J. O'Brien and Robert G. McCord to Use in the Blaine Election—Charges that the Money Was Not Distributed—What Became of the Boodle—An Unsuccessful Investigation.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 18.—What did John J. O'Brien and Robert G. McCord do with the $50,000 of Jay Gould's money which they received to help elect Blaine President in 1884? is the question that is now bothering the local Republican politicians. Men who are in a position to know, say that O'Brien and McCord were handed that sum of money, but there is great doubts about their having used it for the success of the "grand old party." There have been many stories told about the $50,000 which Gould contributed to bribe voters in this city, and Col. Geo. Bliss has charged that the money was not put where it would do the most good, and has insinuated that O'Brien has not given an account of the manner in which the sum was spent, and that the result of the election does not show that money was used to any beneficial extent. The true story of Gould's $50,000, as told by one acquainted with the facts, is as follows: "John J. O'Brien and his side partner in the business of politics, Bob McCord, went to Stephen B. Elkins and engineered an introduction to Gould. O'Brien and McCord had a consultation with Gould in the Western Union building on the Saturday preceding the election of 1884. O'Brien told Gould that money was necessary to elect Blaine; that the machine in the city had barely enough funds to meet the routine expenses of the election; that if a big sum was not forthcoming Cleveland would poll a heavier vote in New York County than was anticipated. O'Brien also told Gould that if he could have a good sized pile of greenbacks he would scatter it among the district leaders, who would use it to cut down Democratic majorities on the east and west sides of the city, which would more than make up for the losses to the Republican party from the Independent and Mugwump vote in the center of the island. O'Brien also gave Mr. Gould to understand that a deal had been made with Tammany Hall. Under this agreement Tammany Hall was to

and in return Grant, for Mayor, was to be run out of the Republican boxes in eight assembly districts. O'Brien intimated that he and John Kelly had formed the compact. Tammany Hall, however, wanted $25,000 to be used by the organization to carry the deal into effect. Gould listened to O'Brien and told him to call on Monday. O'Brien and McCord did not fail to put in an appearance. They came in a carriage, fully prepared to carry away the boodle. They did not see Gould this time, but met his partner Connor. O'Brien and McCord had $50,000 in bills in the carriage when they drove away from the Western Union building. They were at once driven to the Metropolitan Hotel where they hired a room. The money was taken to the room by O'Brien. After they had remained there together an hour O'Brien left McCord in possession and in charge. O'Brien hurried to police headquarters, where all the district leaders had gathered in his office—the Bureau of Elections—at his request. O'Brien told each to go to the room at the Metropolitan Hotel where they would find McCord, who would give them their share for their districts. The leaders all knew that there was to be a big sum distributed, and most of them knew that it came from Gould. The amount distributed at the Metropolitan hotel to the leaders by O'Brien and McCord did not exceed $30,000. The average was $1,250 a district. Some districts got more than others. No one knows to this day what became of the difference between $30,000 and $50,000. O'Brien denies that he ever received a cent from Gould. One of the Republican leaders wishes to know if O'Brien will deny he received $50,000 from Connor. After the election the leaders who had got what O'Brien and McCord chose to give them

BEGAN TO TALK ABOUT THE DISTRIBUTION.

Several of them charged that the entire amount of Gould's boodle had not been distributed, and hinted that O'Brien and McCord had not lost anything as a bank the day before election. Gould became suspicious of O'Brien and McCord and gave his opinion that the $50,000 was not properly used. It was his opinion that if the money had all been used for the purposes for which it was given, Blaine would have polled a larger vote and would have carried the State and been elected. John Kelly heard of the statement O'Brien had made to Gould about a deal with Tammany and repudiated it. The election proved that there had been no deal with Tammany and that Gould had a political confidence game played upon him. A few weeks after election the Republican Election Committee held a meeting. Gould's donation of $50,000 to O'Brien and McCord, was brought up for discussion. The charge was made that O'Brien and McCord had received that sum from Connor directly, and from Gould indirectly. William H. Towniey was chairman of the meeting and Police Justice Smith, secretary. Statements were made by several of the district leaders about the sums handed to them by O'Brien and McCord at the Metropolitan Hotel the day before the election. It was resolved to request O'Brien to appear before the Commissioners about the distribution of the money. The committee held four sessions before O'Brien appeared before them. He was asked by Police Justice Smith if he had received any money from Gould, and he declined to answer the question. He also declined to answer how much money he did distribute at the Metropolitan Hotel, from whence it came, and other important questions bearing on the subject. O'Brien said that he received the money in confidence and would not tell the committee any particulars. The session of the committee was brought to a close and the investigation into O'Brien's stewardship of the $50,000 election boodle did not amount to anything.

AN IMPORTANT BILL.

The Extradition Statute of New York Amended and Perfected.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 18.—A very important bill, which has hitherto escaped public attention, has been signed by Gov. Hill. The bill possesses interest to all officers of justice in the entire State. The new law takes effect immediately and provides that a person charged with crime in another State or Territory shall not be taken out of this State, either with or without his consent, unless he be regularly extradited, and any person or officer who aids or assists in removing any fugitive from justice out of this State without a requisition being first obtained shall be guilty of felony and imprisoned in the State Prison. The act is sweeping in its character in this respect and amends chapter 1 of title 4 of part 6 of the Code of Criminal Procedures.

RARE ART TREASURES.

SALE OF THE FAMOUS COLLECTION FROM BLENHEIM PALACE.

Importance of the Collection—Some of the Noted Paintings—Magnificent Example of Italian and Flemish Painters—The Teniers Gallery—A Six Days' Sale.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The collection of pictures and porcelain from Blenheim palace will be sold in London by order of the Duke of Marlborough in a series of sittings, commencing on Saturday, July 24. The sale will be conducted by Messrs. Christie, Nanson & Woods, and it is safe to predict that its incidents will awaken lively interest on both sides of the Atlantic. A few copies of the catalogue have reached New York, and from a perusal of its pages some idea may be formed of the importance of the collection. Arrangements have been made for the sale to extend over six days. The painters represented, among others, at the first day's proceedings are L. Backhuysen, J. Van Balen, Brauwer, Breughel, A. Cuyp, Vandycke, Heems Kirk, Jordans, Maas, Minderhout, Van Der Neer, Rembrandt, Rottenhomer, Ruysdael, Snyders, Steenwyck, Teniers, Wouvermanns and Rubens. Among the Vandycks is a "Virgin and Child" with life-size figures, and described as a very beautiful picture; and Jordan's signature appears on "The Deposition," showing the dead body of the Savior mourned by the Virgin and others, after the crucifixion. This last is a composition of eight figures, life size, and is regarded as one of the painter's masterpieces. The subject of the Rembrandt is "Isaac Blessing Jacob," a composition of three life-size figures.

THE RUYSDAEL IS A LANDSCAPE

with open fields and figures at the bend of a road. Two of the Wouvermanns are of a war-like type, the first depicting a skirmish of cavalry on the slope of a hill, and the second the storming of a town, with cavalry making a sortie, the latter being one of the artist's early achievements. There are no less than eighteen Rubens, the list including a "Madonna and Child," of which a repetition may be seen in the Munich gallery; a repetition of the "Adoration of the Magi," at the Louvre; one of several "Return of the Holy Family from Egypt," described as of remarkable brilliancy and of great simplicity of execution withal; a "Departure of Lot and His Family from Sodom," with life-size figures, presented by the city of Antwerp to the great Duke of Marlborough; a life-size portrait of the painter, a duplicate of the pictures in Florence and in the royal collection at Windsor, and a "Venus and Cupid Endeavoring to Restrain Adonis from the Chase," a magnificently rich picture, presented by the Emperor of Germany to the first Duke of Marlborough. The second day's sale will be that of the collection generally referred to as the "Teniers Gallery," and including 120 pictures. The Archduke Leopold William, when Governor of the Low Countries, appointed Teniers his principal painter and gave him the superintendence of his gallery, which contained works of the most distinguished masters of the Italian as well as of the Flemish school. Many of these pictures had been purchased from the collection of King Charles I., on their dispersion by the parliament in 1649. Teniers painted small copies of the principal pictures in the archduke's collection, in which he imitated the particular style of each master so successfully that he was called "the Proteus of painting." These imitations he caused to be engraved and published in a folio volume dedicated to his patron. It is now known as the Teniers gallery. Among the copies made by the Dutch artist are reproductions of originals by Beline, Georgione, Veneziano, Titian, Tintoretto, Paul Veronese, Palma Giovane, Palma Vecchio, Paris Bordone, Guido Reni, etc. A large proportion of the copies are familiar to the art lover, through the originals in the Belvedere gallery at Vienna.

THE THIRD DAY'S SALE

will bring to light paintings by Claude, Lancret, Poussin, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Swaine, Watteau, Wouverer, Vandyck, Gainsborough, Mark Geerardts, Solbeln, Sir P. Lely, D. Mytens and Paul Veronese. The Claudes are small landscapes; two of the Reynoldses are copies after Correggio and Caracci respectively; there are five Watteaus and nine Vandycks. A painting of Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Stafford, by the last-named artist, is cited by Dr. Waagen as "one of the few truly dramatic portrait pictures by Vandyck," the original, however, being at Wentworth House. The Gainsboroughs are portraits of John Russell, fourth Duke of Bedford, and Frances Howard, a Countess of Essex and Sommerset. The Titian is a full-length picture, life size, of Philip II. of Spain, and a repetition of the celebrated portrait in the Stadj at Naples. The sixth day's proceedings will dispose of examples of Albano, Borgognone, Caravaggio, Ludovico and Agostino Caracci, Castiglione, Correggio, Carto Dolci, Luca Giordiono, Guido, M. Recci, Tempesta, Tintoretto, Titian, Vassari and Pani Veronese. The Caravaggio is a full-length figure of the "Magdalene." Two of the Doicis are respectively, "Adoration of the Magi," of great finish, and "Madonna Calle Stelle," which last is highly praised by Dr. Waagen and Passavant. One of the Luca Giordiono is a large and powerfully colored "Death of Seneca." Tintoretto is represented by a brilliant little "Virgin and Child," and Titian by a "Saint Sebastian," life size, and by a painting of two figures from his "Gloria," now in the Vatican gallery.

A Big Log Jam.

STILLWATER, Minn., June 18.—An immense log jam occurred in the St. Croix, at Taylor's Mills, thirty miles north of here, last Sunday, which continues to grow at the rate of 700,000 feet per hour. Four hundred men with pile-drivers have been working day and night trying to break it, and it is feared it will last till fall, and, perhaps, till spring. The jam is now over two miles long, and the largest that ever occurred in the Northwest. It contains over 200,000,000 feet, and varies from 150 to 200 feet in width and is at places six logs deep.

REAL ESTATE.

Only a Few Large Transactions in the Market the Past Week.

The most important sale of real estate made the week just closed was that of a tract of ground fronting 200 feet on Gratiot street, extending through to Papin street, and having a frontage of 224 feet on the latter street, also an adjoining 11 feet and 7 inches on Papin street. Wm. Edenborn and wife sold the property to the St. Louis Wire Mill Company for $32,158.40. It is manufacturing property, the company using it for their works.

Roger Plant, who formerly kept a disreputable house and a saloon on Almond street and accumulated a fortune, has removed to the West to enjoy his money, where he is unknown, and is now selling his property in this city. Last week he sold to Mary J. Rohan 25 feet on Eugenia street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, containing an eight-room residence, and 40 feet on Broadway, coener Palm street, having a depth of 142 feet 4 inches. The price of the two pieces of property was $10,810, which is considered quite cheap.

Ignatz Zeller sold to John Gewinner a store having a frontage of thirty feet on South Broadway for $8,400.

A sale made this week by J. E. Greffet of a piece of property on Biddle street shows how little appreciation there is in the value of some property. In 1867 Mr. Greffet's mother purchased sixteen feet of ground on Biddell between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets for $42.50 per foot and has been paying taxes, street and sewer improvements, etc., on it ever since. This week Mr. Greffet succeeded in selling it to the man who owns the ground adjoining for $42.50 per foot, the price originally paid for it. The ground has been lying idle for years and was a dead expense to its owner, so that she is out considerable money on it. It brought more than its real value now is, property there not being worth more than about $35 per foot, but the man who purchased it needed the ground badly and has been after it for years.

Mr. Greffet also sold this week 60 feet on Eighth, corner of Filmore street, Carondelet, belonging to himself, to Henry Halemeier, for $300, or $5 per foot.

Fisher & Co. sold two lots in Aubert place, northeast corner of Lay and Delmar avenues, having a frontage of 120 by 180 feet, to Thomas Miller of the Globe-Democrat for $1,700. Mr. Miller purchased as a speculation. The property belonged to Mr. Keeler of Chicago.

Wilhelm Fleer purchased from Casper H. Beimfohr and wife a house and thirty-five feet of ground on North Nineteenth street for $5,300.

Samuel H. Leathe, the former art dealer, purchased fifty-eight feet seven inches on Vandeventer place from Sallie Walsh for $100 per foot, $5,858.35, or with a slight deduction for cost of transfer.

H. B. Schroeder and wife sold a house and twenty-five feet of ground on Gamble street to Mary Louise Abel for $5,200.

Parker and His Potatoes.

James A. Parker, a good old colored farmer living near East Carondelet, Ill., arrived here bright and early this morning with a load of potatoes. About 4 o'clock in the morning he sold his load, four barrels, to a young man on Third and Morgan streets for $5.80. The purchaser told him to drive to Twelfth and Gratiot streets, where they met two men with a hawker's wagon, and Parker, by the young man's instructions, put the potatoes in it. The purchaser then told Parker to wait until he went for the money. Parker still waits.
